Sacco-Vanzetti Taken to Prison At Charlestown

Confessed Radicals Occupy Cells Where They Will Be Held Until Their Scheduled Execution—Removal Accomplished Without Inkling of Public Knowledge.

Boston, July 1 (AP).—The grim walls of the Charlestown state prison encompassed Nicola Sacco and Bartholomoe Vanzetti, today and for the first time since their conviction six years ago of the murder of a South Braintree paymaster and guard, the confessed radicals, whose trial aroused world wide interest, occupied the cells where they will be held until their scheduled execution the week of August 10.

They were whisked here early this morning in a transfer from the Dedham jail that was marked by every precaution on the part of the state authorities to keep it secret.

Unusual interest attached to the move because it was generally understood that the respite which Governor Alvan T. Fuller granted the men this week, postponing their execution from the sentence date of July 10 to a month later, would render unnecessary their removal to state prison.

State authorities asserted, however, that the respite did not interfere with the statute which provides that condemned criminals be confined in the jail of the county in which they have been convicted.

Removed Secretly.

In contrast to the tremendous interest which has centered on them since their arrest in 190 , the removal of the two men was accomplished without the slightest inkling of public knowledge. Shortly after midnight an old automobile rumbled through the sleepy streets of the pretty suburb of Dedham where the trial was held, and pulled up unostentatiously to the jail door.

A second and third car followed. There was nothing to indicate that the men in whose behalf thousands of petitions have poured in on Governor Fuller, were about to move a step nearer the electric chair they had fought so hard to escape.

A light was switched on in the warden's office, and the handcuffed prisoners quickly shook hands with wardens, then stepped into an old limousine. A minute later the cavalcade sped swiftly toward the state prison.

The arrival at Charlestown was as unheralded to the public as the departure from Dedham had been. Sacco and Vanzetti, closely guarded on either side, were hustled into Warden William Henry's office where both shook hands with that official and said their good byes to Sheriff Samuel H. Cain of Norfolk county, who had delivered them.

The prisoners were assigned to cells in the Cherry Hill section in the same block where the so-called Carbarn bandits recently were detained until the week's their execution.

Neither Sacco nor Vanzetti appeared downcast. Both smiled as they entered the prison and their greetings to the warden and others were genial.

Coolidge Enjoys A Quiet Week

Rapid City, S. D., July 1 (AP).—President Coolidge is completing one of the quietest weeks he has spent since he entered the White House almost four years ago.

While he has driven each day to the executive office here, 42 miles from the State Game Lodge, there has been little more than the usual grist of routine business to demand his attention there. Callers have been few. There has been no house guests.

Ambulance Called Thursday.

Thursday the city ambulance removed Beatrice Hall from the Benedictine Hospital to 68 Washington avenue, and Charles Piper from 61½ Downs street to the Kingston City Hospital.

Barber Shops Close Monday.

All union barber shops will be closed during the entire day Monday, July 4.

New Factory Coming, to Employ 175 People

Chamber of Commerce Instrumental in Bringing Shapiro & Rubin, Manufacturers of Clothing Specialties, to Kingston—New Factory to be Erected at Grand Street and Smith Avenue and Ready for Occupancy by January 1—Bids for Construction Work Solicited.

Through the activities of the Chamber of Commerce, Kingston is to have another new industry which will employ 175 hands In competition with several other cities Kingston has secured the Shapiro & Rubin factory and a new two story factory building is to be built on the corner of Grand street and Smith avenue to house the new concern This factory which is one of a number operated by Shapiro & Rubin, is to be completed by December first so as to be ready for operation on January 1 of next year.

Shapiro & Rubin are manufacturers of specialty clothing articles such as knickers, golf knickers, suede coats, trousers, boys' suits and other clothing specialties. The factory will employ 65 men and 110 women. The concern now operates several factories and is well known. The offices and one of the plants are located at 85 Fifth avenue, New York, and other factories are located in Brooklyn, in New York and other cities.

Plans have been completed and are now in the hands of Architect George E. Lowe for the erection of a two story brick factory building, 70 by 140 feet in size, on the lot at Grand street and Smith avenue. The building will be of brick with concrete foundation and modern in every respect The heating will be steam. In designing the building special attention was paid to the electric work which will be quite elaborate. All of the sewing machines will have individual lights at the needle point, a modern method of lighting

In addition to the manufacturing rooms there will be rest rooms, shipping rooms and offices A freight elevator will also be installed.

All floors over the coal storage bins and furnace rooms will be of reinforced concrete and the other floors as well as the roof will be of slow burning construction All entrance doors will be of hollow metal, protected against burglary. There will be two fireproof stairways in towers to comply with the fire regulations. In addition there will be a sprinkler system for fire protection. All sashes will be of steel

Many cities including other Hudson valley cities have been active in securing the location of the new factory when some time ago additional facilities were needed and the management decided to construct a new factory outside New York city. The local Chamber of Commerce became active and presented the local advantages to the management of the company Up until the present time all details were cared for by the local Chamber of Commerce and now that the factory will locate here the Chamber of Commerce asks the cooperation of the local contractors and builders. Plans have been prepared and are now in the hand of Architect George E. Lowe of No. 286 Wall street where they may be secured by contractors desiring to figure on the work. Estimates will be solicited in three groups. The first group will be for the carpenter, mason and painting work In group two will be the plumbing and heating work and the third group will include the electrical work.

Contractors desiring to figure on the job may secure plans and specifications from Mr. Lowe Bids must be in by July 11 when the bids will be publicly opened at the Chamber of Commerce building on Broadway. The work will be completed by December 1, and the plant will go into operation on January 1.

Fog and Accident Delay Steamers

Fort Orange Compelled to Anchor in Hudson River Until Morning—Trojan Breaks Steering Apparatus.

The heavy fog which visited this section of the state Thursday night and early this morning hindered traffic on the Hudson river to a considerable extent. The steamer Fort Orange of the Hudson River Night Line on her way from Albany to New York was caught in the fog near Rhinecliff. She was compelled to drop anchor for the rest of the night. As soon as the fog lifted this morning she docked at Rhinecliff and the passengers took a train for their destinations.

The steamer Trojan of the same line on her way from New York to Albany broke her steering apparatus just off of Turkey Point. The apparatus was repaired and the steamer had left by morning.

Officials of the Central Hudson Steamboat Company and the Cornell Steamboat Company both report that travel on the river during the night was extremely difficult but that insofar as they know no disasters befell any of their craft.

The ferry Transport had little trouble in making her regular runs early this morning.

SEIZE BARGE WITH 6,000 CASES OF LIQUORS

New Brunswick, N. J., July 1 (AP).—Apparently as a farewell gesture to James L. Jones, temporary state prohibition administrator, who today returns to Washington, three enforcement agents last night seized a barge, loaded with 6,000 cases of liquors after the "mother ship" had been bagged in Chesapeake Bay.

The mother ship, authorities said, was the schooner O. S. Robinson, seized at the mouth of the Delaware river with 500 cases aboard. Authorities placed the value of the 6,500 cases at $500,000.

TWO KILLED, TWO HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Auburn, N. Y., July 1 (AP).—George Bell, 31, of Kellogsville died at the Auburn City Hospital today of a fractured skull and internal injuries, making a second victim of the automobile accident in which his partner, Joseph McSweeney, 29, of Niles, was killed last night. Two others are seriously injured Willis Jayne, 28, is suffering from a fractured shoulder, bruises and internal injuries, and Archie Sayles has a possible fracture of the spine.

Millionaire Took Pageant Pictures.

Henry Millonig, Jr., of 97 Clinton avenue was among the cameramen Thursday taking movies of the pageant for the local theatres.

Fishermen First To Greet Fliers

After Plunge Into Sea About 200 or 300 Yards From Shore—Taken To Home of Assistant Mayor of Ver-Sur-Mer.

Courseulles-Sur-Mer, France, July 1 (AP).—Two fishermen named Martin and Marius, eye witnesses of the descent of the transatlantic plane America into the sea off Ver-Sur-Mer this morning, were the first to greet Commander Richard E. Byrd and his three companions and to conduct them to safety.

The fishermen, who were preparing to put out to sea for their day's labors, said that they saw the plane slowly coming down in the mist and then plunge into the sea at what seemed to them a distance of about 200 or 300 yards from the shore.

The fishermen saw a raft-like object coming to shore and said that they ran to the water's edge where the aviators landed and declared their identity. The two French fishermen then took the American fliers to the house of M. Croiffier, assistant mayor of Ver-Sur-Mer, which was about a mile and a quarter from the place at which the landing was made.

M. Croiffier received the aviators most cordially and Commander Byrd was quoted as telling him that the oil and gasoline of the America was almost exhausted and that they had been on the lookout for land, knowing at the time that they were over the sea

Two of the American airmen went to sleep at the home of M. Croiffier, while the two others were given beds at the home of the lighthouse keeper.

M. Croiffier said this afternoon.

"Martin and Marius awakened me with the news that an airplane had fallen into the sea and that the aviators had come ashore. I dressed and went down to the beach with my son. We found two men much exhausted. One of them was Commander Byrd. I brought them to my house and gave them something to eat and they are now asleep."

"The other aviators" said Croiffier were some distance along the beach They were taken in by the lighthouse keeper"

BROADWAY SWEET SHOPPE WILL OPEN SATURDAY

The Broadway Sweet Shoppe, located in the Broadway Theatre building, will be opened on Saturday, July 2. The shoppe is looked upon as being one of the most modern tea rooms in the Hudson Valley. It will seat one hundred persons.

The public is cordially invited to inspect the shoppe.

To Adjourn Monday.

Owing to the fact that Monday is a legal holiday no other or earlier will be taken up that day, but same will be taken up on Tuesday.

Byrd Lands in Channel Unable to Sight Paris

"Home Guard" of Byrd Satisfied

Receive News of Actual Landing With Calmness But Great Satisfaction—Staged Premature Banquet.

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., July 1 (AP)—The "home guard" of Commander Richard E. Byrd's aerial overseas expedition, which prematurely celebrated with a banquet, music and fireworks his arrival in France, received the news of his actual landing with calmness but great satisfaction.

There were only about twenty persons about the hangar of the America Transoceanic Company when the word came that the fliers were safe at Ver-Sur-Mer, and most of these were newspapermen.

Among the faithful who maintained an all night vigil at the end of a telegraph wire, however, were Mrs. Bert Acosta and Mrs. George O. Noville, who refused to give way to fear even when their husbands were missing for hours

When a cablegram was received from Commander Richard E Byrd addressed to his wife saying he had landed and all were safe, the two women telephoned Mrs Byrd in Boston and they exchanged words of joy on being relieved of the intense strains

Others of the faithful group were Tom Mulroy, chief mechanic who was with Byrd at Spitzbergen when he flew to the North Pole, and Ross Gardiner, also one of the America's ground force Grover A. Whalen, vice president of the American Transoceanic Company and personal representative of Rodman Wanamaker, backer of the flight, also remained throughout the night.

Mrs. Acosta and Mrs. Noville finally left for their temporary home at the Garden City Hotel at 5:45 o'clock this morning

Each woman shook hands with the newspapermen who had shared their vigil with them and thanked the men for keeping them posted throughout the night with the latest bulletins of the flight.

Tough Break, Says Bennett.

Floyd Bennett, who was to have been pilot of the America but for an accident which has confined him to a hospital in New York, was told of the safe arrival of the America over the telephone by Mr. Whalen.

"It was a tough break, but it could have been worse," said Bennett when told of the forced landing. He expressed joy, however, that the fliers were safe.

The big event at the field took place at 7:45 last night when a false report that the America had landed set a crowd of several hundred into a wild burst of enthusiasm.

Fire works were dug out from somewhere, an orchestra was hurried out from New York, waiters engaged and a regular banquet was soon underway.

Tables had been set in the rear of the hangar which was decorated with American-French flags. The orchestra played the "Star Spangled Banner" and the "Marseillaise" and the crowd went wild with joy. Mrs. Acosta and Mrs Noville occupied places of honor.

And then just as the dessert was being served the news arrived that the earlier report was incorrect. But the faithful "home guards" were in no mood to believe the later report and the celebration was continued. Many went to their homes still in belief that the fliers had landed.

"I Am Delighted," Says Mrs. Byrd

Boston, July 1 (AP).—An all night vigil ended joyously for Mrs. Richard E. Byrd at her mother's home here when Grover Whalen, vice president of the American Transoceanic Company, relayed by telephone from New York her husband's message announcing the America's landing at Ver-Sur-Mer.

"I am delighted," the wife of the commander told The Associated Press.

She listened carefully to the reading of the dispatches from France and then said

"Please say for me how thankful I am for the kindness of the newspapers who have kept us informed throughout the entire flight."

FORMER CHIEF CURREY AN O. & W. POLICEMAN

Ex-Police Chief Roy M. Currey of Ellenville went on duty last week as a member of the O. & W. railroad police force in Ellenville.

Steamer Sagamore Sinks.

Lake George, N. Y., July 1 (AP).—The Lake George steamer Sagamore sank after striking on the rock known as Anthony's Nose, about 200 feet south of the pier at Green Eagle today. All of the passengers and crew reached shore without accident.

Compelled to Land in Sea Off Ver-sur-Mer, France, When Gasoline and Oil Run Out—Travel 200 Yards to Shore in Pneumatic Raft —Tail and Landing Wheel of America Torn Off.

Ver-Sur-Mer, France, July 1 (AP).—Out of gasoline and groping blindly through fog and rain to find a safe haven, the transatlantic plane America descended safely in the sea early this morning near this town on the coast of Normandy.

Successful in their valiant effort to span the Atlantic, but 175 miles west of their goal, Paris, the American aviators headed by Commander Richard E. Byrd, made their way through the sea 200 yards to shore with the aid of a pneumatic raft which they had been able to inflate before their plane struck the water.

Tired by their long air voyage that had carried them across the Atlantic and in a vain cruise in the fog and rain above France to find the flying field at Le Bourget, the American fliers went to bed after they had made their way to shore with the help of fishermen and the keeper of the lighthouse here.

It was 2 20 a m French time when the American fliers, seeking land and safety after their long voyage through the air, dropped into the sea about 200 yards from shore and were quickly into the water to their elbows.

Manning their rubber rowboat raft, which was part of the equipment of the plane, they made several trips to shore, saved all the most important equipment of their ship and then went to sleep at the homes of their French hosts.

Only the top edge of the plane's wings was above the surface of the sea, but the fliers, their minds once more easy after their long battle with fog and rain, slept peacefully until called at 3 o'clock this afternoon at their orders

Writes Up His Log.

Commander Byrd, who had added to his laurels of being the first man to fly across the North Pole the new distinction of spanning the Atlantic through unusually unfavorable storm conditions, was very tired, but was not too tired to write up his log of the flight.

He chatted with his hosts and drank a glass of milk before retiring in the home of Joseph Croiffier, deputy mayor of Ver-Sur-Mer.

Commander Byrd declared on arriving in this little picturesque resort, that the America had encountered bad weather all the way from the United States and that fog had kept them from finding the air lane to Paris and had forced them to grope blindly in the air until they had no choice but to make a descent as best they could when their gasoline ran out.

Uneasy About U. S. Mail.

An account of how the America came down and how Commander Byrd and his three companions got ashore was given by the commander himself to Max Mathey, a French aviator and journalist who brought an Associated Press correspondent here from Paris in an airplane.

"Commander Byrd" said Mathey, "on being awakened met me in the kitchen where we had a meal. He said the arrival of the Associated Press plane awoke him. He was uneasy about the sack of United States mail which he carried in the America and which had been left at the lighthouse after having been taken from the plane.

"Byrd told me that just before the America came down he and his companions had been turning around and around in the fog without knowing where they were. Virtually no oil was left and no gasoline.

"'We had no choice but to seek a landing', Byrd said 'When we struck water the tail of the airplane was torn off together with the landing wheels. We immediately began to get out our rubber boats. We were up to our bosoms in water. We got ashore but had no idea where we were.

"'Do you think you'll go to Paris?' I asked

"'To tell you the truth I don't know what we will do,' he replied."

Flight Ends In Sea.

Paris July 1 (AP).—The transatlantic flight of Commander Byrd after hard luck and tremendous difficulty ended just after dawn today in the sea 200 yards from the beach of the little seaside resort of Ver-Sur-Mer 175 miles west of Paris.

The aviators swam ashore and immediately went to sleep in a little cottage to which they were taken. The monoplane America was badly damaged—how badly awaited determination till the aviators should have a good sleep.

From the advices reaching Paris it appeared the plane came down at 5 45 o'clock, which would mean they were in the air 43 hours 21 minutes from the time they left Roosevelt Field, N. Y., with Paris as the goal.

Presumably the fliers faced death in their flight that lasted for almost two days For hours over the Atlantic they were unable to see the ocean or determine with any accuracy, except with the aid of the radio, where they were. On three occasions even the tips of the wings were obscured from the anxious man in the pilot's seat

Greatest Peril Over Land.

But it was over land itself that the greatest peril came. In the darkness of a rainy and stormy night, when their compass failed to work, they literally wandered about high in the air, seeking a place to come down The radio guided them over the sea, but somehow it failed on land. When their own signals were heard, as they were at frequent intervals, the receiving stations were unable to locate their position in the sky.

The most critical time of all came when it seemed to all the observers that they must be over Paris searching through clouds and fog for the lights of the Le Bourget Field. Then their signals ceased. At last, at 1.25 o'clock in the morning, came an appeal for guidance. But no one knew where they were and help was impossible Anxious watchers aground were forced to wait helplessly throughout the remaining hours of darkness, unable even to guess where the plane had gone.

Were Over Paris.

The reports from Ver-Sur-Mer indicate that they actually were over Paris at three o'clock in the morning, and that for some reason, as yet unexplained, they turned about and went westward again. The last place the plane was actually seen was at Brest, about 200 miles west of the spot where it came down. That was at 8.33 p. m., when the French Cable Company announced it had clearly seen the distinguishing marks of the craft.

After that the air was filled with all sorts of incorrect reports that the plane had been sighted, even that it had landed safely at Issy Les Moulineaux. The landing at Issy was announced by Commandant Renvoise of Le Bourget air field, and the prefect of police, who later admitted that their information was erroneous.

Worst Night of Season.

The night was one of the worst of the season in Paris Rain fell in torrents, the clouds hung low and so thickly that the sky was as completely hidden as the earth must have been to the men in the plane. Contrary winds whirled about, and as hour after hour passed the watchers were sure the plane had either been forced down or crashed at some spot in the fields or forests that surround Paris.

Among those who anxiously awaited news were Sheldon Whitehouse, charge d'affaires of the American Embassy in the absence of Ambassador Herrick, Captain Richard E. White, the naval attache; H. A. Gibbons, personal representative of Rodman Wanamaker, backer of the flight, and government officials. Clarence D Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, who know the dangers of the trans-atlantic voyage also were there.

Order Complete Search.

As the night wore on without definite news, the French ministry of interior issued instructions that a complete search be made immediately of all four departments to the south of Paris in the belief that the fliers had been forced to alight at some isolated spot. The search had hardly been under way, however, when the news came that the aviators were safe at Ver-Sur-Mer. First it was in a form like the false reports of the night and was received with skepticism. Then details, sure to be sure, began arriving from point after point, and finally corroboration that made it true beyond a doubt.

Then Mr. Gibbons and Captain White left for the seaside resort to bring the airmen to Paris

Meanwhile it become known that the commander of the port of Caen with the cooperation of the Cherbourg naval authorities, had gone to Ver-Sur-Mer in a naval tug to save the plane. They averred that the machine was badly damaged and that they found the landing gear broken. When they made the examination, at 11 a. m., it was high tide, but they hoped the craft could be kept anchored until low water

Former Governor of Vermont Dies.

Montpelier, Vt., July 1 (AP).—Charles W. Gates of Franklin, governor of Vermont from 1915 to 1917, died today after a brief illness. He had been a member of the state highway board for several years since serving his term as governor and was state highway commissioner preceding his election in 1914 as governor.

TROUBLED WESTERNERS.

William Allen White, the renowned Kansas editor, laments that the prosperity, in which he admits his own share, has made the American people "deaf to the cause of reform" and victims of a sort of "spiritual sleeping-sickness," one of the symptoms of which is a "worship of stability." To which Basil Manly, "director of the people's legislative service," responds: "I don't think it is prosperity except as an overfed body tends always to cramp the spirit." The real trouble, Mr. Manly thinks, is that the old leaders are gone and Senators Norris and Borah "shrink from the responsibilities of avowed leadership." The people may read the dispatches from Washington and "interpret for themselves, but there is no authoritative organization, no recognized leader, to say to them: 'This act is destructive of liberty. That policy leads straight to war. That law confers special privileges at the expense of the people'."

The impression to be gathered from this interesting interchange is that the West is less satisfied with things as they are than the East, which is vastly contented merely to roll in its fat. The authorities quoted above are disturbed, but not quite sure what to do about it. They do not despair, however. They have hope in the eventual arrival of the needed leader and have faith in "the people." For there seems to be enough optimism left for at least a perfunctory handing out of this hopeful prophecy: "Sooner or later they (the people) will turn aside from their present absorption in money, movies, radio, automobiles and sports and respond wholeheartedly to a magnetic leader who will call them to the service of high ideals," although at present, it might be added, they exhibit no marked inclination or hurry to do so.

UNSOUGHT SLEEP BEST.

It is in summer time that the tired head or agitated mind most often finds it difficult to woo the muse of slumber, and it is therefore appropriate enough that authorities should now come forward to tell the light sleeper how to put himself readily into the "arms of Morpheus." The Rev. Dr. Charles R. Brown, dean of the Yale Divinity School, advises the distressed sleep-seeker to utter a number of words suggestive of the repose he seeks, such as "quietly, easily, restfully, trustfully, patiently, serenely, peacefully, joyously and confidently," thinking of each of these "slowly and separately until restlessness disappears and the subject is mentally in harmony with the meaning of the words." There is something pleasing, even alluring, in this suggestion, but the obvious difficulty, as will at once occur to the light sleeper of experience, is to keep the tired or worried mind fixed on such words or their meanings, and prevent a prompt return to the source of concern or the burden of persisting thought.

According to Dr. Charles W. Burr, professor of mental diseases at the University of Pennsylvania, the best plan is to "think about nothing" and not try to go to sleep. No doubt the greater the effort the less chance there is of success. "Most of us," says Dr. Burr, "sleep because we have nothing else to do and have not spoken enough to keep awake." Possibly he wishes to suggest that by taking pride in one's insomnia as an indication of "human" one can wean oneself from a persistent burden of thought, but doubtless there are times when even this would not work and a dreary night of successful "half-sleep" is the utmost that can be achieved.

WIDESPREAD INTEMPERANCE.

Doubtless there are readers who will hardly need to be told by the Department of Agriculture that ham and eggs and bacon and eggs are highly nourishing dishes. It seems that both contain a liberal supply of the two important elements, "vitamin A" and "vitamin B" in addition to "fat, protein, minerals and other desirable constituents." But we may be sure that many hearty eaters need to be told that too much of all this richness is a dangerous indulgence. It appears that the late William J. Bryan, for example, too readily permitted himself to satisfy a rather gargantuan appetite for these and other dishes. Sloane Gordon, who traveled with him during his Presidential campaigns, has itemized in Howe's Monthly a breakfast eaten by Mr. Bryan on a Virginia plantation in 1900 as follows.

First a large cantaloupe. Then two quail followed by Virginia ham and a half dozen eggs. After that he accepted a full plate of batter-cakes swimming in butter, and a second helping of the same. In addition there were many cups of coffee and fried potatoes and side dishes of various kinds before he left the table, ready for a day of speechmaking for temperance.

It would appear from this that Mr. Bryan was a victim of the most widespread and insidious form of intemperance. The heedless and happy "food drunkards" are legion, often collapsing in their very prime because their indulgence taxes even the most robust constitutions beyond the possibility of continuing survival

ONE MAN'S WORK.

All sorts of jobs have been urged upon Charles Lindbergh, at fabulous salaries. Fortunately for him and his country he is refusing nearly all of them and sticking to his purpose and his sense of fitness.

Lindbergh is not an actor; why should he go upon the stage?

He is not a business man; why should he sit at an executive desk?

He is not a politician or statesman; why should he seek public office?

He is an aviator—a natural air man who combines, in rare degree, the skill of a pilot, the knowledge of a mechanic, the sense of a transportation man and the vision of a dreamer. His chief interest in life is the practical development of commercial aviation. To that, apparently, he intends to devote his life.

In furtherance of commercial aviation, Lindbergh may yield a point and go on a lecture tour. He is not a lecturer, but he can learn the trick well enough for the purpose. At least he starts with the very important asset, often overlooked by lecturers, of having something to say.

Blessed is the man who has found his work. Lindbergh has found his. Let no well wisher of that young man, and no lover of his country, try to divert him from it.

DAILY LESSONS IN ENGLISH.

By W. L. Gordon.

Words Often Misused: "Moneys" is the correct plural for "money," not "monies," because the "y" is preceded by a vowel.

Often mispronounced: memory. Pronounce as three syllables, and not mem-ri.

Often Misspelled: patronize, ze.

Synonyms: disaster, calamity, accident, mishap, misfortune, casualty.

Word Study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us increase our vocabulary by mastering one word each day. Today's word: PERMUTATION: the exchange of one thing for another. "The permutation that time effected could not be erased."

Rosary Outing July 17.

The date for the annual outing of the Rosarians of St. Mary's Church has been changed from Sunday July 10 to Sunday, July 17, when the organization will visit Wiet Park. The buses will leave the school hall promptly at 11 o'clock. The Sisters of the Sacred Heart Orphanage will serve coffee tea and milk. All Rosarians and ladies of the parish who wish to take part in the day's outing are requested to notify the officers or the pastors not later than Thursday, July 14.

VACATION.

Everybody should be thinking about a vacation to be taken at some time during the year.

There is no question but that the outdoors should be your aim, but just what to do and where to go is what causes you considerable thought.

Now as I said once before, I have as much right to tell you how to take a vacation as I have to tell you how to bring up your children. With one child you use the strap or the stick to get obedience, whilst with another you can reason and explain and no whipping is necessary.

Similarly with a vacation.

One family goes to the seaside or lake because the water appeals to them. Another to the hills, and still another on a motor trip. Now the seaside may not be the best place for that particular family, nor the hills for the other, nor the daily motor ride for the other. But what is the point about these different methods of spending a vacation?

Each family, and also each individual, has a wish, a desire to spend the vacation a certain way. That is why so many of our young people come home so tired from their vacation. They swim, row, or paddle all day, and dance well into the night, with an insufficient amount of rest. It is a couple of weeks before they feel properly rested after a vacation.

And yet they have no regrets They didn't miss a minute of enjoyment whilst they were away.

Furthermore do not go to a place where you have to be "dressed up" not only in the evening, but all day long also. Where you have to be "under observation" at all time means that you will be "tensed" all the time, and a real vacation is one where you are free from all tension whatsoever.

Of course, if this is what you wish to do then by all means do it, because a real vacation, as mentioned above, is doing what you wish to do at least once a year.

Now my suggestion is not a new one. It is that you try and arrange to do the thing you wish to do for your vacation But on arriving at your destination decide to rest, really rest, mentally and physically, for a couple of days Then begin your exercise of walking, rowing, paddling, swimming, or dancing gradually. You will thus be in a condition to enjoy the rest of your vacation because you will not start into things too tired Then a couple of days before the end of your vacation begin to take things "easy" again. You will thus come back to your work feeling fit, and your work will not be a grind.

Indiana Rears War Memorial

Indianapolis July 1. (AP)—To its sons and daughters who served in the world war Indiana will dedicate a shrine, the cornerstone of which will be laid July 4 by General John J. Pershing.

The $2,000,000 edifice is the central structure in a war memorial plaza a block wide, reaching northward for half a mile from the city's business district.

The commander who led American troops in the world war will be surrounded by distinguished military men and civilians when he fits into place the block of marble on which the shrine will rise.

In the hall will be housed treasures of the A. E. F. and relics of state military history, and themes of war, peace, patriotism and sacrifice will be worked into friezes and mural paintings on the walls of the interior chamber.

Completion of the central shrine will give Indianapolis and Indiana one of the most notable war memorials in the nation. The long mall, bordered by the James Whitcomb Riley memorial library and the federal courthouse and postoffice building, already contains the national headquarters building of the American Legion.

The project is a joint undertaking of the city, county and state.

DRY BROOK.

Dry Brook, June 30.—Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stewart and children and Mrs. Douglas Van Steenburg of Lew Beach were callers in this place Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crane of Deposit spent Monday night at Fern Crest Fox Ranch. Mr. Crane has a fox ranch near Deposit and is known as one of the most expert trappers of the state.

Work on the new concrete bridge is being completed as rapidly as possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Graham and Paul McCann of Margaretville visited friends in this place Sunday.

Mrs. John Haynes has her driver's learning permit and is learning to run her car.

ROOSTERS

There were two little chickens. One was very good and always did what old Mother Hen told him to, but the other chicken was very bad—would tease his sisters and fight with his neighbors.

His Mother Warned Him.

His mother warned him, saying:

"Now, if you aren't good some harm will surely come to you."

But the little chicken paid no attention and strutted around, thinking he knew everything there was to know.

Time went along, and the chickens grew up into roosters. The good chicken turned out to be a very beautiful rooster, with a fine red tuft and perfect feathers.

The naughty chicken was not nearly so fine looking, as he had been in so many fights he looked quite scratched and scrawny, and as he had always wandered off and eaten anything he pleased, his plumage was not nearly so nice as his brother's.

One day the bad rooster got in the most awful fight, in which he very nearly lost an eye.

Oh, how he then yelled for his Mother Hen and his brother, and they bathed his wounds and tried to comfort him.

After a few weeks the bad rooster had fully recovered, but his eye was quite badly marred, and he missed ever and ever so many worms that his good brother was able to see and pick up.

Nor could he run very fast, as he was so apt to stumble and fall.

But what made him feel most ashamed was that all the little chickens were shown the difference between the rooster who had always done what his mother had told him to and the bad rooster with a disfigured eye who had always been disobedient.

A Very Beautiful Rooster.

The bad rooster was a much older and sadder rooster than his brother, who, of course, still looked fine and young.

But he became very kind, and all the little chickens would get him to tell them stories.

But they could never forget that he had injured himself in a fight, and a very peaceable and fine set of roosters resulted from the naughty rooster's sad experiences.

Stopped Hiccoughs

Little Louise had been left in charge of her grandfather, and was sitting happily by his side looking at pictures when she was taken with a violent attack of hiccoughs. All of the ordinary remedies failed to relieve the child, and grandfather was really much alarmed until he conceived the idea of frightening them away.

Taking the hiccoughing child by the shoulders, he gave her a little shake, and shouted in stentorian tones: "You stop that!"

Louise's little heart was broken at the idea of her grandpa's being so cross at something she couldn't help, and the hiccoughs were mingled with sobs as she gasped: "They do it their selves!"

When the tears were wiped away, the hiccoughs had gone, too.

Daddy Was too Smart

It was little Barbara's first experience with tunnels, and her father, who was on the train with her, said, in fun, "Now, watch, dear; papa's going to make a sign and it will get dark, but in a little while the light will come back."

Immediately the train entered the tunnel, and the child was deeply impressed by the exhibition of her father's magic power. But the few minutes' time seemed as if it would never end, and at length she burst out in dismay: "My gracious, daddy; now just look what you've done!"

What Am I?

My seas have never held water; my rivers dry and my fields barren. I possess large cities and yet not a single house. I am irregular in shape, without either grace, beauty or attractiveness; and yet in your eyes I represent the whole world.

Answer—A map of the world.

Likes Heavy Meals

Little Girl—Mamma, I want a heavy breakfast.

Mother—How can I give you a heavy breakfast?

Little Girl—Well, you told sister Mary to give me a light supper, and I didn't like it.

HIGH FALLS

High Falls, June 30.—There will be preaching service held in the Reformed Church Sunday morning and every Sunday throughout the summer by E. R. Palen at 10:30. Sunday school at 9:30, standard time.

The social held Thursday last in the Reformed Church was well attended. It was a success. The entertainment given by Mrs. Willard Adams, the Misses Doris Abeley and Evelyn Brown, Ross Osterhoudt and Mrs. Edward Muller of Stone Ridge added to the social part of the evening.

Mrs. Mary Rose of Beacon is spending some time with her sister, Mrs. Julia Steen and helping to care for her sister, Mrs. Addie Goetcheus, who is very ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Green entertained relatives over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dewitt of Alligerville were callers at Mrs. E. D. Kortright's on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Smith of Long Island was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Daniel Beaton, the past week.

Miss Harriet Church has returned home after a six weeks' touring trip in Europe.

Mrs. Florence Dumond of Kingston is spending a two weeks' vacation at her home here.

Mrs. Joetta Snyder and Mrs. Emma Schoonmaker of Kingston visited Mrs. Thomas Snyder last week and attended the social on Thursday night.

Mrs. Hileman of Belmar, N. J., spent the month of June at the home of Mrs. L. W. Krom.

William Flanagan of Kingston was a recent guest of his sister, Mrs. Kathern Joseph.

Miss Dorothy Bacholer was the guest of her friend, Miss Harriet Church, over the week end.

Miss Kate Krom is spending her summer vacation with her mother, Mrs. L. W. Krom.

Miss Bertha Ghear left on Wednesday for the Catskill Mountain House where she holds the position of head waitress.

Mrs. M. E. Sheeley is spending a few days with relatives out-of-town.

ASHOKAN.

Ashokan, June 30.—Chester Lyons sold a Chevrolet coupe to W. D. Hawk of Kingston and a coach to George Burgher of Brodheads.

Officers Simpson and Drum of the state police went to the boat races and Pageant at Kingston this week.

Martin Avery made a business call here Wednesday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bogart and daughter, May, and Mrs. Newton Smith spent Wednesday with Mrs. Charles Davis.

Alonzo Winne has six new swarms of bees so far this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hesley and family called on Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Merrihew Wednesday evening.

Jacob Hyner and Miss Jean Hyner are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lifschitz.

MONTOMA.

Montoma, June 30.—Mrs. Mary Brower of Kingston and Mrs. Kathryn Silkworth of Glenford spent Tuesday with Mrs. O. F. DeGraff.

H. Matheson has built a new bungalow and has it rented for the summer.

Mrs. Wells of Massachusetts spent the week end with her daughter, Mrs. Leon R. Whipple.

DAILY RADIO PROGRAM

Saturday, July 2.

Edwin Franko Goldman will direct his famous band when they present an open air concert of miscellaneous selections on the New York University campus on Saturday night. This program will be broadcast by WEAF and associated stations of the Red Network, and will feature George J. Carey, xylophone soloist. Earlier in the evening WEAF and WRC will radiate a regular Saturday night highlight when the Week-Enders, a synthetic symphony, will be staged before the microphones. Marley Sherris will have charge of an entertainment of songs and music through WJZ. Other features well worth tuning in are a musical program entitled "The Daisy Chain, which will be offered by the Kurtz Studio Quartet through WIP and WGBS, a vocal recital as sung by the Royal Male Quartet through WOR, and a program of German songs and music by the well known vocalist Heinz Bisping, through WNYC.

Wave lengths in meters on left of station title, kilocycles on the right. Times are Eastern Daylight Saving and Eastern Standard. Black type indicates best features.

KEEP COOL WITH GEYSER AND HATHORN

Natural Sparkling Waters Bottled at State Owned Saratoga Springs Under State Supervision

Acid indigestion is most disturbing in hot weather, when the stomach is sour and gassy, caused by too much acidity. The whole digestive process is disturbed and extra burden is put on the heart. Panting for breath and excessive perspiration are common.

Geyser water neutralizes acidity, relieves indigestion, eliminates gas, corrects the sourness, and by so doing helps to relieve the system of the causes of the excessive feeling of the heat.

Hathorn, the natural laxative water, taken upon arising in the morning, thoroughly cleanses the whole digestive tract, which in itself enables the body to endure the heat without being so much affected.

Both Geyser and Hathorn are delightful in taste and very beneficial to health. Ask your doctor about them.

There are only three State owned naturally carbonated waters bottled at Saratoga Springs under State supervision. These are Geyser, Hathorn and Coesa. Ask for them by name and insist on getting

The genuine. Order from Burs Grocery Co., Joseph Stickles, and other good dealers

BREITHAUPT; LOUISA E. BREITHAUPT; H. LEE BREITHAUPT and HARRY W. BREITHAUPT, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale duly granted in the above entitled action and entered in the Ulster County Clerk's office on the 1st day of June, 1927, I, Amos Van Etten, the undersigned Referee, in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the front door of the Court House in the City of Kingston, County of Ulster, New York, on the 21st day of July, 1927, at 12 o'clock noon, the premises described in said judgment, as follows, viz.—

ALL THAT TRACT OR PARCEL OF LAND, situate, lying and being in Woodlands, Town of Shandaken, Ulster County, New York, being a part of the 400 acre lot conveyed by Christian Winne and wife to Beach and Woodworth, April 28th, 1802, and recorded Book 52, page 235 and adjoins the before lot sold by Marinda W. Beach to Jeremiah Roberts, July 21, 1840, Book 300, page 428, and bounded as follows:— BEGINNING at the stone which marks the southwest corner of said Roberts half-acre lot, and runs thence South 24 degrees west seventy-four (74) links to a stone (about one foot above ground) thence south 86 degrees east one chain ninety links to a stone (about one foot above ground) set in the side hank, thence south thirteen degrees and one chain and seventy-eight links to a point in the middle of the beaten track of the highway, thence north 78 degrees and three chains and seventy links to a point in the middle of the highway, thence westerly along the southerly boundary line of the Roberts half-acre lot to the place of beginning. Said parcel containing one-half acre more or less. As the same is described in a deed from Clinton Terry to said George Terry, recorded Book 286, page 405.

ALSO THOSE CERTAIN OTHER LOTS, pieces and parcels of land, situated in the Town of Shandaken, County of Ulster, as the same are fully described and set forth in a deed from Elizabeth Gilbrick to said George E. Yerry, dated March 30th, 1906, and recorded Book No. 405, page 176, August 3rd, 1907, Ulster County Clerk's office in which deed or the record thereof reference is hereby made. Subject to the encumbrances thereon and subject also to the charge against said property made by said deed in favor of said Elizabeth Gilbrick and Leigh S. Gilbrick, which said charges in by said grantee herein assumed.

ALSO ALL THAT TRACT, piece or parcel of land, situate in the Town of Shandaken, County of Ulster and State of New York, and bounded and described as follows, viz:— Beginning in the southerly bounds of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad at a point opposite an iron pipe driven in the ground at or near the end of a stone wall, and running from thence in a southwesterly direction along said stone wall to the southerly end thereof, and so continuing up the mountain in a straight line in range with said stone wall to the bounds of Robert J. Fox; then along his bounds in a northeasterly direction to the center of Fox Hollow Creek; thence down the center of said Creek to Dutcher's line; then along Dutcher's line to the southerly bounds of the Ulster & Delaware Railroad aforesaid; then in a westerly direction along the southerly bounds of said railroad about fifteen hundred and twenty-three feet (1523) to the place of beginning. Containing by estimation about fifty acres of land, be the same more or less.

ALSO ALL THAT CERTAIN piece or parcel of land situate, lying and being in the Town of Shandaken, Ulster County, New York, and bounded as follows, viz: Beginning at the center of the highway near an elm tree in the bounds of Edson Coons and running from thence westerly along his bounds to the bounds of Anna Dutcher's, thence down her line to the southerly bounds of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad, thence along the southerly bounds of said railroad to the center of the Fox Hollow road, thence up the center of said road to the place of beginning.

Being the same premises conveyed by Elizabeth Gulnack to George E. Yerry March 30, 1906, recorded Book 405, page 176, August 3, 1907, and by George E. Yerry to Elizabeth Yerry October 30, 1907, Book 411, page 290.

EXCEPTING AND RESERVING, all that tract or parcel of land situate in the village of Allaben, County of Ulster and State of New York, and bounded and described as follows:—Beginning at a cherry tree along the Fox Hollow Creek and running thence along the line of George E. Yerry's property 245 feet to an iron post driven in the ground, thence north along the land of Elizabeth Yerry 315 feet to an iron post driven in the ground, thence east 210 feet to an iron post driven in the ground, and thence south along the Fox Hollow Creek to the place of beginning, containing 2 acres, be the same more or less.

The parties of the second part are to have the privilege of the water rights in and to the spring located on the property of Elizabeth Terry providing a ¾ inch is used.

ALSO EXCEPTING AND RESERVING all that piece or parcel of land situate in the Town of Shandaken, County of Ulster and State of New York, bounded and described as follows.—Beginning at an iron stake set in the ground at the corner of lands of Edwin L. & C. C. Fish and lands of the party of the first part at the easterly corner of the lot hereby conveyed and runs thence in a westerly direction along lands of EDWARD L. & C. C. Fish one hundred and seventy-five (175) feet to an iron stake in the ground at the edge of the said cut road; thence in a northerly direction along the course of said said cut road as it turns in a northwesterly direction to an iron stake in the ground at the northerly corner of lands of the party of the first part; thence in a southerly direction along lands of the first party to the place of beginning. The above conveyance is one of several building lots laid out along Fox Hollow Road by George E. Terry.

ALSO ALL THAT TRACT of land situate in the Town of Shandaken, County of Ulster and State of New York, briefly described as follows:—Beginning in the southerly bounds of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad at a point opposite an iron pipe driven in the ground at or near the end of a stone wall and running from thence in a southwesterly direction along said stone wall to the southerly end thereof, and so continuing up the mountain in a straight line in range with said stone wall to the bounds of Robert J. Fox, then along his bounds in a northeasterly direction to the center of the Fox Hollow Creek; thence down the center of said Creek to Dutcher's line; then along Dutcher's line to the southerly bounds of the Ulster and Delaware Railroad aforesaid; then in a westerly direction along the southerly bounds of said railroad about fifteen hundred and twenty-three (1523) feet to the place of beginning. Containing by estimation about fifty acres of land be the same more or less.

EXCEPTING AND RESERVING therefrom the following parcels of land as described in a deed from Elizabeth Terry to George E. Terry dated November 26th, 1915, and recorded in Book of Deeds No. 549 on page 354 in the Ulster County Clerk's office on November 30, 1915. Also parcel of land described in deed from Elizabeth Terry to Edwin L. Fish and Cecelia C. Fish, dated November 28, 1906, and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's office in Book of Deeds No. 450 at page 475 on February 28, 1917. Also parcel of land described in deed from Elizabeth Terry to Joseph J. Terry dated May 12, 1919, and recorded in Ulster County Clerk's office in Book of Deeds No. 468, at page 422 on May 12, 1919.

FIND KEY TO MOSES' TONGUE

Inscriptions Discovered at Sinai May Help Solve Baffling Problem.

Boston.—The key to the baffling characters of a strange half-Semetic, half-Egyptian language which flourished nearly 3,000 years ago and which science has never been able to decipher may rest today with Prof. Kirsopp Lake, head of the Harvard-Michigan expedition to Mount Sinai, Arabia.

A terse message from Professor Lake to the Boston Herald reports new-found fragments of the mysterious "Sinai inscriptions," which Harvard university authorities said might throw an entirely new light on Moses and biblical history.

The Sinai inscriptions were first found more than twenty years ago on the mountain where Moses received the tables of the law. They have never been satisfactorily read, although authorities have unceasingly sought their solution.

May Remake History.

If Professor Lake's "fragments" fit into the existing gaps it was possible, archeologists here said, that they might not only remake history but reveal a new origin of modern languages

The inscriptions were discovered in 1904 during the excavation of the temple of the Egyptian goddess, Hathor on the side of Mount Sinai. They were carved on stone tablets and images unearthed among ruins of the temple and were in a language never before encountered by excavators, according to Dr. Henry Pfeiffer, Ph D, instructor in Semitic languages at Harvard.

The characters, he said, were strangely allied to Egyptian hieroglyphics and the later Semitic alphabet, yet were not identical with either

Prof. Hubert Grimme, a German scientist, who has advanced a translation for the earlier fragments which however, has not been accepted by all investigators, believes the inscriptions represent a connecting link between the Egyptian and Semitic languages

Gods Share Temple.

Grimme's translation made Moses, himself, the writer of the sentence in which, after identifying himself as superintendent of the mine workers of Sinai and the caretaker of the great temple there, gives thanks to the Egyptian queen (Pharaoh's daughter) for having rescued him as a child from the Nile

He expressed gratitude for positions of power the queen has given him and refers to the temple as belonging to the Egyptian goddess, Hathor and to the Jewish god, Jehovah

According to Doctor Pfeiffer, the scripts date back roughly between 2000 and 1200 B C. E, when the Egyptians were known to have mined copper and turquoise near Sinai.

The present expedition was backed by the Universities of Harvard and Michigan and left this country last autumn Its principal purpose was to delve into the ancient manuscripts stored in the library of the monastery of St. Catherine, high up in a shoulder of the mountain. Doctor Lake, who is one of the recognized authorities in the world on the subject, is at present in Cairo.

Too Deep For Irene.

I went to see a baseball game;
It puzzled my poor dome.
Each player stayed upon the field
Yet some they said walked home.

A business career never lowered the stature of any real gentleman.

Bathing: Will this bathing suit shrink,
Beauty: Positively not, madam.
Bathing: Show me a cheaper brand, please.

"Are you a messenger boy?" asked the near-sighted man of a boy in the street.

"No, sir," was the indignant reply; "it's my sore toe that makes me walk so slowly."

The teacher wishing to arouse the interest of her Sunday school class, asked them to write the names of their favorite hymns.

All the pupils bent their heads over pencil and paper for a few minutes, and then handed in their slips—all except one.

"Come, Mary," said the teacher, "bring me your paper."

Mary, with downcast eyes and flaming cheeks, handed the teacher a slip of paper bearing the words: "Willie Smith."

"Why do they have those glass cases with axes in 'em in the railroad passenger cars?"

"Oh, they are put there to use in case anyone wants to open a window."

Advice.

Be careful, son, if you are wise,
And do not make a break;
You'll find the girl with dreamy eyes,
Is very wide awake.

To silent singer: "Why aren't you singing, old boy?"

"My mother told me to beware of wine, woman and song. I've quit singing."

There is no way to make it rain, says a weather expert, but it seems to help some when you put on a white suit.

"I'm a fast woman," shouted the elderly matron as she tried to rise from the glue-smeared bench.

A Hartford, Conn., bachelor is said to have an assortment of 400 white collars but if he should happen to marry we don't suppose he would have any place to put them.

There was a young flapper who rolled 'em;
Not needing her garters, she sold 'em;
When the weather was cold
And she wished 'em unrolled,
The poor dear had nothing to hold 'em.

Champ hard-boiled egg gives his son a quarter a week allowance and then gets the kid to put it in the gas meter, telling him it is a savings bank.

A hick town is one in which there is no "Main Street," no "Star Bakery," no "Parlor Market," no "Central Presbyterian Church."

There is the usual discussion as to whether to spell it chigger or chigre. An ex-doughboy who was in France insists on spelling it chiggaire.

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

Concerning Spiral Treatments and One-Sided Drapes, Sleeves and the Lack of Them.

New York.—Paris seems to be concentrating on designing frocks that are off center. She is rather insistent on one-sided treatments, approving them even for hat brims, which recently have acquired one elongated side.

The side drape has been attempted with some success for a season at least, and all manner of diagonal trimmings and even diagonal tucks have won favor Evening dresses seem to be chosen more often to express this spiral effect and everything from fringe to embroidery, including scallops, is pressed into service to produce this rather extraordinary but unusually flattering line Everything about the model sketched carried out the one-sided idea. The bow and hem line contribute to the spiral effect, which is one of the most approved ways of manipulated tiers

The overly tall or overly stout woman should rejoice in this opportunity to compromise with a fate that binds her to vertical effects. Lace flouncings usually are effective, when so fashioned, and every wardrobe of importance has a collection of colored lace frocks, as well as an untrimmed plain satin, together with tulles, chiffons and taffetas

A few seasons ago one was permitted to wear a sleeveless frock by day, then, with the inconsistency of fashion, the practice was frowned down The sleeveless frock is again being received in good society before 6 o'clock in the evening There are also many sleeveless sports costumes, also jumpers, jackets, coats, and evening dresses. Some of the most extreme of these last are being capped over the shoulder in epaulette effect

FAIR AND FESTIVAL AT WOODSTOCK MONDAY

The ladies of the Woodstock M. E. Church will hold the usual fair and festival July 4, beginning in the morning at 10 o'clock. A fine hot roast veal dinner with all the trimmings will be served beginning at 12 o'clock daylight saving time.

During the afternoon the usual pretty and useful things may be found for sale, at the fair tables, and a parcel post booth, an orange tree and a fish pond will be open for all. At 6 o'clock the fine supper for which these ladies are famous will begin and continue until all are served.

Son To Take Father's Place.

Sunday services at St. John's Church, High Falls, and St. Peter's Church, Stone Ridge, will be held at the usual time. Bishop Sherman has appointed the Rev. D. S. Agnew of Ellenville to carry on his father's work until the rector, the Rev. W. J. Clarke Agnew, improves in health.

Business Certificate Filed.

Maurice Gallet and Henriette Gallet of 152 North Water street, Poughkeepsie, have certified to the Ulster county clerk under the assumed name business law that they are conducting a business in Kingston under the name and style, Blue Ribbon Dyeing and Cleaning Co.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

God give us more of the people who set about definitely and actively to cultivate the habit of happiness; people the corners of whose mouths are turned chronically up, not down; people who are looking for inspiration and calling forth the best from all.—R. W. Trine.

DAINTY RAMEKIN DISHES

The individual ramekins are the best adapted for all kinds of scalloped or souffled dishes.

Sweetbread Ramekins.—Clean and parboil the sweetbreads in slightly acidulated water; drain and cut into cubes. Melt two tablespoonfuls of flour and pour on gradually one cupful of chicken broth. Reheat the sweetbreads in the sauce and add one-fourth cupful of heavy cream and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of beef extract. Season with salt and paprika and a teaspoonful of lemon juice Fill the ramekins, cover with crumbs, well buttered and bake until the crumbs are brown.

Curried Sweetbreads.—Prepare the sweetbreads by soaking them in cold water and a tablespoonful of vinegar; parboil until tender, remove and plunge into cold water. When cold cut into circular pieces. Fry one sliced onion in two tablespoonfuls of butter or olive oil until lightly colored. Add two tablespoonfuls of flour, cook until well blended, add one and one-half cupfuls of chicken stock and cook until thickened. Strain, season with salt, pepper, a teaspoonful of curry and a tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar or lemon juice. Let the sauce cook a moment; add the sweetbreads, turn into individual ramekins and bake about thirty minutes.

Salmon Souffle.—Take one small can of salmon (flake), two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, one tablespoonful of butter, one-fourth cupful of milk, three eggs, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, the same of onion juice, one teaspoonful of minced parsley and one-half cupful of bread crumbs. Drain the oil from the salmon, remove the bones and skin. Blend the butter and cornstarch and gradually add the milk; cook until smooth. Remove from the heat, add the egg yolks beaten, the lemon and onion juice, parsley and bread crumbs Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour into individual dishes or into a large ramekin; set in water and bake one-half hour.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Handy Apron.

5752. Rubberized cloth, gingham, nainsook, cambric, cretonne and lawn are all good for the development of this practical model.

The pattern is cut in one size: Medium. It requires 1⅛ yard of 36-inch material together with ⅜ yard of contrasting material six inches wide for the pockets.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Spring and Summer 1927 Book of Fashions showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 20 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Match This One

The big car was stalled at the bottom of a steep hill. A passing driver, seeing the predicament the driver was in, offered to tow him up the hill. The driver of the big car smiled condescendingly, as he agreed. The driver pulled the big fellow up. As they pulled over the top, the owner of the larger vehicle asked, "What is all that smoke coming from the back of your car?"

"Just imagine," came the answer, "I've had my brakes on all the time."

County Pageant Seen by 10,000

center of the stage in the events of the day, many did not forget that it was the day of the Ulster County annual picnic—one time in the year when the social life of Ulster county is centered in one spot.

Troopers Perform Stunts.

Soon after 1:30 the rough riding squad of Troop C, New York State Troopers, began to make preparations for the exhibition which they had promised to give those who came early to the Pageant. A large crowd of persons was on hand to watch them perform By the time they started, the stands in the Driving Park were filled to capacity and people were lined up all around the track.

The Troopers, under the direction of Captain Fox, then proceeded to thrill the crowd with one daring stunt after another. They finished their exhibition by riding through hoops of fire.

Troopers Handle Traffic Well.

The Troopers under the direction of Col. George F. Chandler and Capt Fox handled the heavy traffic on the streets as well as on the parking grounds in an unusually efficient manner. Over three thousand automobiles were in the parking grounds and yet the traffic moved in and out without any confusion whatsoever. The pedestrian traffic was also handled in such a manner as to cause a great deal of favorable comment

Gathering of the Chiefs.

At exactly 3 30 a fanfare of trumpets announced the opening of the Pageant. Old Chief Pegh-Peghquanock (D. V. Z. Bogert of New Paltz) came slowly from his tepee to the center of the field unattended. He stretched his left hand toward the hills at the north and a smoke signal arose. Then he stretched his right hand toward the elevation at the south and another signal appeared. Then he stretched his hand toward the west and the crowd saw a third signal fire calling the chiefs to assemble. Rapidly the mighty chiefs came to the council fire. As they began to gather, other Indians, represented by inhabitants of the Rondout valley, began to make their appearance.

Indian women soon emerged from their houses and began to do the work around their dwellings. Indian children also began to appear on the scene and began to play Indian games.

Some of the chiefs began to arrive with their attendants, among them being Pemmyramock (E. C. Elmore of New Paltz), Pennamock (J. E. Hasbrouck of Modena) and Seewechammee (Howard Zimmerman of New Paltz.)

Dutch and French Traders.

Soon after the chiefs had gathered a messenger announced the arrival of some Dutch traders. The traders came slowly upon the scene, and were received by the Indian chiefs They did some trading with the Indians and then left. After them came the French traders. A contrast between the two nationalities was immediately brought to the attention of the spectators as the French traders entered the scene with more dispatch than had the Dutchmen and immediately began to exchange beads, hatchets, and trinkets for the valuable furs and the coveted grains of the Indians.

Coming of Dutch Immigrants.

Then the Dutch settlers began to appear on the scene. These early settlers were well provided with their own household goods and with stock for their farming operations as they came into the settlement, some on oxcarts, some in horse draw vehicles, some on horse back and some on foot. It was very apparent that a great deal of thought and attention had been put into the preparation of this scene by a great many people, every detail seemed to be thoroughly worked out. The Dutch were received by the Indians and then began to build their homes.

Stone Houses Erected.

In a few minutes stone houses as well as log cabins began to make their appearance all over the lowlands. The construction of these houses and cabins was undoubtedly one of the features of the Pageant. The rapid manner in which the lowlands were transformed from an Indian village into a real Dutch settlement called forth a great many favorable comments on the part of the spectators. Nor did they have to stretch their imaginations a great deal to imagine a Dutch village before them, which spoke well for the manner in which the old Dutch houses were duplicated by those who had charge of the construction of the scenery. As the large number of Dutch settlers began to make their way in and out among their homes, it presented a very attractive appearance.

French Settlers Appear.

A few minutes later the French settlers appeared on the scene. Their leader, Louis DuBois (Millard DuBois of New Paltz), was welcomed by the Dutch as well as by the Indians. The settlement then took on new color as these immigrants began to mingle in the village. The DuBoises, the LeFevres, the Deyos and the Hasbroucks began to make themselves a part of the community

Bitterness Follows Compromise.

The settlers and the Indians then had a number of minor disputes but they were all settled in a peaceful manner at a conference between the chiefs and the leaders of the settlement At this conference the whites, chief among them being Thomas Chambers (John Ostrander of Hurley), made certain accusations against the Indians and the Indians in turn made accusations against the white men A compromise was effected but both sides left the conference harboring bitter feelings

Soon these bitter feelings caused another outbreak between the Indians and the white men This time the settlers became alarmed and went to Governor Petrus Stuyvesant for aid.

Stuyvesant Arrives on Scene.

Harmon Jansen (Ross K Osterhoudt of Stone Ridge) was fishing at the mouth of the creek and suddenly came running to the village and announced the arrival of the governor and thirty Dutch soldiers Stuyvesant's boat was grounded and Govert Loockerman (Ralph Harrison of Woodstock), who was in command of the military expedition, came ashore with two sub-officials, and meeting with some Indians, asked for an interview with their chief Loockerman then asked the chiefs to meet the governor at Jacob Stoll's (Harold Baars of Hurley) house two days later

Then the governor met the settlers and advised them to retire to a stockade. He also met the Indians and proceeded to arouse them rather than calm them to any marked degree. Finally after a number of conferences the chiefs offered to grant the colonists land The offer was accepted and the town named Wiltwick

Then there was a short portrayal of some of the Esopus wars. At times this scene was very realistic Finally the Indians sued for peace and Stuyvesant consented.

The British Appear.

In the next scene Wiltwick was disturbed by the arrival of a horseman (Irving D Kortright of New Paltz) and his attendants who called for the burgomaster (Dr A. B. Reynolds of New Paltz) and announced to him that New Amsterdam had been taken by the British and that the entire province was now under the British sovereign He proclaimed the town a British possession and declared that hereafter the town should be called Kingston The Dutch colors were then lowered and the Union Jack was run up in honor of the Duke of York As this was done the orchestra played "Hail Britannia".

The Colonial Wedding.

Then followed one of the most attractive scenes in the entire Pageant, the Colonial wedding The director for this scene as well as the last two scenes of the Pageant was Mrs. George F Chandler of this city. All of the pantomime actions stood out very clearly in this scene and the audience did not find it difficult to follow every move. Throughout the scene the bride (Mrs. Ralph Gregory) and the groom (William R. Kraft) were very much in evidence as were the father (David Burgevin) and the mother of the bride (Mrs. George F. Chandler), as they greeted the guests, as the bride and groom entered the court house and obtained their license, and finally as the bride and groom drove away amid the cheers of the guests and the inhabitants of the village.

Adopting the Constitution.

After this scene the court house became the center of the stage. Many favorable comments were made on the manner in which the old court house had been duplicated for the Pageant. Every detail seemed to have been taken care of and it made an excellent background for this scene as well as for the one to follow.

As the scene opened some of the delegates began to arrive. Gouverneur Morris (Willis Ryder) was one of the first to arrive From New Paltz to the south came Colonel Abraham Hasbrouck (Bernard Feeney). Down from the north came Robert Livingston (Stephen Hyatt). General Ten Broeck (Arthur Hendry) was given special attention as he was the president of the Convention. John Jay (Arthur Chipp) was escorted to the court house by a group of prominent citizens. After a short time Colonel Van Cortlandt (Arthur K. Rice) and the secretary of the convention appeared on the steps and the new Constitution was read to the crowd amid great enthusiasm.

Inauguration of Governor Clinton.

Then came the final scene. Obviously the Pageant could not have all of the dramatic qualities of a play. Yet this final scene was worked out in a such a careful manner that it proved to be an excellent climax to the whole production. A general excitement in the crowd foretold the news that General Clinton (Clifford Anderson) had been sighted down the road and all eyes were directed toward the coming of the approaching horsemen. Soon the general with his staff (Tunis H. Haulenbeek, Charles H. Buckholtz, Lewis Shaw, Eugene Conway and Kenneth Post) appeared in front of the court house.

The general proceeded to the steps of the court house. Soon, however, he was lifted on a plank which has been placed on two barrels Colonel Van Cortlandt joined him there and proceeded to administer the oath of office The governor hurried away soon after the inauguration as the populace acclaimed him wildly.

Fine Dancing Exhibitions.

During practically every scene some excellent exhibitions of interpretative dancing were given. The dance that was given during the Dutch wedding, under the direction of Miss Margaret Richards, was particularly attractive. Pupils of Miss Richards also presented an early English dance during the racing of the English flag. Other persons who assisted in the preparation of the dances which were given throughout the Pageant were Mrs. William D Cunningham of Ellenville, Miss Donlon of Saugerties, Mrs. Lewis of Flatbush and Miss Taylor of New Paltz.

Directed by Telephones.

The scenes were directed by a series of telephones strung over the grounds by the 156th Field Artillery, all leading to the position held by Mr Bennett up on the hill, overlooking the lowlands.

Great Amount of Work.

No one could have witnessed the Pageant as it was presented on Thursday without being impressed by the fact that it must have taken an unusual amount of work to make the event possible As the large crowd left the fairing lush grounds, many favorable comments were made on one of the greatest pageants ever attempted in Ulster county.

Gained Wide Attention.

The Pageant gained wide attention throughout the state by representatives of a number of newspapers New York city newspapers and news associations were present Some of the New York papers carried pictures of the event in their Sunday editions

'Phone Service On Pageant Field

Local Military Unit Put Instruction to Practical Test in Stringing Field Wires and 'Phones to Enable Orders to be Transmitted.

Looking from back of the scenes at the Pageant Thursday, a great deal of credit must be given the First Battalion Headquarters Battery and Combat Train for the manner in which they handled the telephone communications at the grounds It was well worth watching the way the men from this outfit handled the job of laying the wires and installing the hookup of the 'phones, then making what they call line tests to make sure that everything would be in readiness for the afternoon performance.

One central 'phone which is designated as a C. P. (command post) was hooked up so as to be continually in contact with all other 'phones whereby the director, Prof. Bennett, could inform the man at C P. the time for the Indians or the wedding party or any other particular party to appear at any given point From C P. the wanted party were informed of the schedule and given their cue

It is a privilege for any young man to belong to a battery of this kind, not only in serving one's country, but to be able to demonstrate at a minute's notice the teachings which have been received at the armory and during the two weeks at summer camp each summer The manner in which the men handled their job Thursday demonstrated that the instructions they receive can be applied in a practical way under actual service conditions.

OLD CUSTOM SEEN IN PLIGHTED VOWS

Most of Them Handed Down Through Centuries.

Of all the strange relics of thought, primitive fancies and beliefs so surprisingly a part of civilized life, the marriage customs of different races are perhaps the most fascinating. No one ever stops to think of the meaning of the many practices so obviously a part of the modern marriage ceremony, yet each has a story of its own which stretches back through the centuries. Each little custom that the bride observes links her to the traditions of the dim and dusty past, and, although they have long been recognized as mere superstition, no bride would ignore them for the world.

The marriage rite, emerging from the shadows of prehistory, is one of the oldest of human institutions. Certain writers of authority believe that men and women originally had no higher marriage sense than the animals, while other writers of prominence believe that, although there was a time when the modern ceremony was not observed, marriage in its truer sense has existed since the beginning of time. Marriage has passed through three well-defined stages of development—marriage by capture, marriage by purchase, and marriage through mutual love. The word wedding, often so casually used, in itself reveals the old practice of securing a wife by purchase, for the "wed" was the money, horses or cattle with which the bridegroom purchased the bride from her father. As a slight compensation to the bridegroom for this money or goods, the father in turn presented the couple at marriage with a "trusse," meaning a little bundle.

The "trusse" later gave way to the trousseau, which in turn had its origin in the dowry. At first the value of the trousseau was an important factor in winning a husband, and many girls began making their bridal finery at a very early age. At one time it was quite the proper thing for the bridegroom to examine the trousseau and decide whether or not it was complete, and it is said that the choice of a suitor often depended upon the worth of the girl's outfit.

The hope chest, now a relic of other days, retained because it is a pretty and convenient custom, likewise had its origin in the oldtime dowry. Long ago the hope chest was very important in the life of every girl. In most homes there was a chest set aside for each daughter, into which bits of finery and handmade linens were placed for "the home of her hopes," from which can be seen the origin of the name. A widespread superstition associated with the hope chest is that a bit of handwork by the bride-to-be must be placed on each article contained therein if happiness is to bless the home. For this reason many brides prefer to initial linens themselves, which is well to remember when making gifts.

Out of the Frying Pan

Two deaf men were playing cards in a popular Paris barroom the other afternoon and, as both were poor players, they burst into frequent and violent recriminations in the strained, slightly monotonous tones which some deaf persons use. The room was crowded, and finally the other patrons began to complain of the uproar made by the two card players. Whereupon the manager, observing that it was about time to arrange the tables for dinner, courteously stopped the game and confiscated the cards. "It is the hour, gentlemen," said he, "when playing must be suspended."

"Oh, very well then," one of the deaf men bellowed to the other; "we'll just talk for a while"—From Le Figaro Independante, Paris (Translated for the Kansas City Star)

Twins Break Swim Record

Zitenfield Sisters Complete Swim From Albany In Better Time Than Mrs. Schoemmel—Will Sail For France.

Berenice and Phyllis Zitenfield, thirteen-year-old twins of Mrs. Julius Zitenfield, landed at the Battery, New York city, Thursday afternoon at 4:51 o'clock, having completed the swim from Albany, a distance of about 155 miles, in the elapsed time of 52 hours and 30 minutes, although they have been since June 19 making the trip. The record was held by Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemmel, who made the swim in 57 hours and 11 minutes.

A large crowd had gathered at Pier A to greet the young swimmers when they swung from the river into the slip where police boats were anchored, using a strong crawl which had been taught them by Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey. The crowd applauded vigorously as the girls, covered with grease and wearing white bathing suits, crawled out of the water.

The twins left the water at 6:45 o'clock Thursday morning after swimming from Yonkers, and slept in the boat until 10 o'clock, when they went to the home of Miss Ann Sawyer, of 681 West 158th street, to rest until time to continue their swim. Thursday night they were guests of honor at a testimonial dinner at the Hotel Astor, and on August 1 will sail on the French liner Ile de France for Havre to swim the English Channel. Fred Colin, a banker, of 141 Fifth Avenue, promised them that if they broke Mrs. Schoemmel's record he would pay their passage to France.

Church Addition Contracts Signed

Contracts for the erection of the assembly room addition to the Albany Avenue Baptist Church were signed at the offices of Architect George E. Lowe Thursday, and work on the building will be commenced at once and rushed to completion.

The contract was divided into six divisions and there were several bids submitted for each contract. The low figures were well within the estimates of the architect.

Thomas Kennedy was awarded the mason contract. The carpenter work was awarded to Delbert Griffin. Plumbing work will be done by Fred M. Dressell. The painting contract was awarded to Robert McKittrick and the electrical work will be done by John Krusher. The only contract which has not been yet signed is the heating contract which will be awarded and signed later.

Motorists Urged To Ce Careful

American Automobile Association Urges the Motorists of the Nation to Redouble Their Normal Precautions Against Accidents.

Washington, D. C., July 1.—With every indication that motor travel over July 4th will reach an unprecedented volume, National Headquarters of the American Automobile Association broadcast an appeal today urging every car owner to use the maximum care in order that highway accidents may be kept down.

Coinciding as it does with the week end, together with the increase in cars and the lateness of the motoring season in many sections, Independence Day and good weather this year is bound to crowd the highways to maximum capacity, the A. A. A. warning declares. This prediction is also borne out by the demand for touring information made at the touring bureaus of 891 motor clubs constituting the A. A. A. circuit.

The appeal of the national motoring body lays special stress on the experience of previous years, which demonstrated that a great many of July 4 motor accidents occurred at points where comparatively untravelled side roads converged with main highways and where the motorists overlooked the fact that thousands of picnic parties spend the day on these side trails.

"Watch the side road and watch the grade crossing," the statement warns. It continues:

"Make this a Safety Fourth: the occasion provides the motorists with a ready-made opportunity to demonstrate in a practical fashion their interest in public safety. They should make up their minds before leaving home that they will encounter heavy congestion, and forewarned should mean fore-armed.

"There will be many factors in the situation over July 4th that call for the maximum of safe-playing. There will be the usual crop of inexperienced drivers, who seldom get behind the wheel, except on holidays. More trains will be running and the hundreds of additional excursion trains will render caution at grade crossings double imperative. More children will be on the streets and everywhere the motorist will encounter picnic parties shooting out of lanes and secondary roads opening upon trunk highways."

Here are some of the safety precautions advised by the A. A. A. in connection with motor travel over the Fourth:

"Remember that thousands of drivers are on their first tour and make allowances for their shortcomings.

"Start early if you must reach your destination at a certain hour, and thus eliminate the necessity for fast driving.

"Keep to your own side of the road. Horn at the top of hills and at turns where vision is obstructed. Turn into a sideroad when making repairs and don't park on the traveled portions of rural highways.

"Familiarize yourself with traffic regulations in cities and towns which you plan to pass through.

"Remember that more accidents occur in open country than on city streets, and that there are more of them in daylight than at night.

"Don't exceed a speed of 25 miles an hour on strange roads after dark. Failure to apply this rule causes many collisions with cars coming out of side roads and lanes, journeying home from picnic parties.

"Be especially vigilant late in the afternoon when people are becoming tired and less wary.

"Inspect your car, don't go unprepared: see that everything is shipshape.

Commercial Detroit

The city of Detroit is on a river which carries more traffic than the Panama and Suez canals put together. It is estimated that at least one ship passes a given point in Detroit harbor every 15 minutes throughout the day and night.—Woman's Home Companion.

Hans Andersen

Hans Christian Andersen, the famous writer of fairy tales for children, was an only child of poor parents. He was born in 1805, in the beautiful little town of Odense, on the island of Funen, Denmark, and he immortalized his native birthplace in the story, "The Bell-Deep." Son of a shoemaker, he was sent to the poor house school in the town, where his natural abilities and love of study caused him to gain distinction. After years of struggle, he eventually became famous, when he visited many countries of Europe, and as a notable man was much sought after. Andersen came to know Sir Walter Scott and Robert Burns, besides many other distinguished writers and poets. He died at the age of seventy, and was buried in Copenhagen.

Lutheran School Graduates 8 Girls

The eleventh annual closing exercises and Commencement of the Livingston Street Lutheran School were held Wednesday evening, June 29. The children of the lower grades participated in a varied program, under the direction of F. Ehnes. The pupils of the upper grades, directed by G. Weil, took part in drills and recitations.

A class of seven girls was graduated from the eighth grade, having passed the New York State Regents' examinations. They were Gertrude Gronemeyer, Caroline May, Anna Witthoft, Edna Wolff, Louise Engelbrecht, Lillian Hoetger, Ethel Petri. The salutatory was given by Caroline May; an essay on the class colors, "Blue and Gold", by Anna Witthoft; the class motto, "Excelsior", by Edna Wolff; the class poem, "Excelsior" by Longfellow, was recited by Louise Engelbrecht, Lillian Hoetger and Ethel Petri. The valedictorian was Gertrude Gronemeyer.

The Commencement address was given by the pastor, the Rev. E. L. Witte, who also presented the diplomas. The orchestra, under the leadership of G. Koch, rendered several excellent selections.

Local Banks Buy Phoenicia Bonds

Thursday noon at the court house Phoenicia water district bonds, amounting to $40,000 running for a period of twenty years, a portion being payable each year, beginning in 1928, were put up at auction by John W. Eckert, representing the town of Shandaken. The bonds were bid in by the three Kingston savings banks and the Kingston Trust company at $41,250.

A psychologist advances the theory that one reason why young men commit suicide is that old men talk and write too promiscuously.

The skeptic's position is simply that whatever the young modernist happens to call his painting it will probably be an assumed name.

Walker Wins Furious Fight

London, July 1 (AP).—Whatever is symbolic of the middleweight boxing championship of the world was back in the trunk of Mickey Walker today and due for an early return to Elizabeth, N. J.

Mickey fought off an old-world claim to the title in as fast and furious a fight as London rings have ever known. A gallant son of Scotland made the bid and failed at the mid-point of their scheduled 20 round bout last night as the Irish-American's flailing fists knocked him down for the fifth time, and out.

From the start to the dismal finish that sounded the knell of his hopes, Tommy Milligan fought with all he had, scorning to play safe by hanging on. Against the solid punching power of Mickey's fists he pitted that land made the bid and failed to the British ring as the "sweet science." But the battle was won by dynamite.

Two knockdowns in the seventh sounded Milligan's doom, but the fighting Scot did not hear. Twice again in the ninth he went down and in the tenth it came—a left that sent him to the floor so weak his knees refused to hold him when he tried to rise.

Arriving home in Elizabeth, N. J., Walker will find plenty of challengers among his countrymen, it appeared today. Outstanding among those who claim a match is Tiger Flowers, the negro deacon, from whom Walker won the title on a close decision in Chicago last December.

ENGLISH AMATEUR SOCCER PLAYERS COMING HERE

New York, July 1 (AP).—Sport gained new recognition as a factor in international amity today when it was announced a team of amateur soccer players from Worcestershire, England; will come to this country this fall for five games with the men of Worcester county, Massachusetts.

Their playing tour from September 21 to October 1 is to carry on a tradition of friendly sportsmanship started last year when Worcester, Mass., sent the pick of its industrial players to Worcestershire.

After the series, one game of which is to be played in connection with the New England fair at Worcester, September 29, the visiting players will be invited to see a college football game and a part of the world series, to visit Niagara Falls and the General Electric plant at Schenectady, and to be guests of John McEntee Bowman, of the National Sportsmanship Brotherhood, at the Westchester-Biltmore Club, Rye, for a week of sightseeing in New York.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

Reade's Kingston theatre will screen "Slide, Kelly, Slide" again this evening, starring William Haines and Sally O'Neil, supported by a cast of movie notables. There will be a four-act Keith-Albee vaudevillle program.

The Broadway theatre will show "The Secret Studio" with Olive Borden and Walter McGrail. There will be a five-act vaudeville program.

The Auditorium theatre will have as the feature attraction "Land Beyond the Law," starring Ken Maynard.

Golfer's Alibi

On the St. Andrews links an enthusiastic player with a most irascible temper was faced with a critical short putt. He addressed his ball, studied the line, steadied himself carefully, putted—and missed.

Instinctively he glared round but the entire party might have been so many statues—not a caddie had moved, not a player had budged. His eyes roved the horizon in vain. No one outside the match was in sight. Then he gazed aloft, while breathless silence invested the scene. At last the explosion came:

"D—n that lark!"

Bees Dumb, Says Scientist

Bees may be busy, but not bright, says J. H. Millet, a French scientist who has been investigating their efficiency in gathering honey. Experiments have proved to him that the bumers are guided solely by odor, and they often pass by scentless flowers with stores of honey and go to those that have a sweet perfume and little sugar. He says that they even try to extract honey from perfumed artificial flowers.

Tagging Major League Bases

(By The Associated Press.)

Home run hitting de luxe by the big-muscled Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig had the New York Yankees farther than ever ahead of the American League pack today as the Washington Senators tried their hand at the herculean task of overhauling them.

No. 25 for both Babe and Lou came in the same game yesterday and went a long way to help the Yanks to win by 13 to 6 from the Red Sox. For three innings after socking his 25th of the season Gehrig led his illustrious team mate, but the Babe took the challenge in the fourth with a hot-shot to the top of the right field stands. Never since 1920 has anyone led the Babe in the gentle art of turning out four baggers and this was not for long.

Far behind the Yankees their rivals were fighting hard, and hoping the Yanks would let up as they did last year about this time, although it was not enough to lose them the pennant.

A spirited challenge yesterday came from the Senators who took up the job of pace-following at which the White Sox and Athletics before them have failed.

In second place with the White Sox third the Senators clinched the contender position by downing the Athletics for the second time in two days by 6 to 5. This latest addition to a winning streak that included five straight at the expense of the Red Sox was won on tight baseball and Goose Goslin's timely single in the ninth.

Another rising threat appeared in the Detroit Tigers who were in fifth place but only a jump or two behind the White Sox and Athletics. The Indians' crack pitcher, George Uhle, again proved no puzzle to the Tigers as they won from him by 6 to 5 for the fifth time this season.

Al Thomas's tight pitching kept the White Sox in the running with a 5 to 1 victory over the Browns who have a losing streak five games long.

National League clubs succeeded in getting exactly nowhere although two games were played in that circuit, the Giants and Braves breaking even in a double-header. Eddie Farrell played brilliantly afield and at bat for Boston while Benton, the pitcher whom McGraw obtained by trading Eddie, was knocked out of the box by his old mates in the second game on 13 hits in seven innings. Scoring five runs in each of the last two, the Giants won the game by 11 to 6, however, after losing the first by 6 to 1.

K. of C. to Play At Ravena

July 4 will bring together the Ravena-Coeymans aggregation and the local Knights of Columbus team on the former's diamond. The game will be the second of the season between the two outfits and the Caseys are out to avenge the win scored over them in the final inning of the previous contest.

Volker and Connelly will be ready for mound duty with Shultz in the berth behind the bat. McGrane, Diddrik, Sickler and Leskie will perform in the infield while Feeney, Colvin and Cahill will be the men to hold down the outer garden berths.

Tommy Davitt, one of the valued Casey players, will be missing from the lineup as he is now signed up for a trial with the Colonial team.

"ONE-EYED" CONNOLLY MEETS FIRST DEFEAT

London, July 1 (AP).—Chagrined over what he said was his first defeat in thirty years of "ring crashing" in America, Canada and Australia, "One-Eyed" Connolly was sent on his way back to the United States by the British authorities on the steamer Scythia yesterday. He came to break his way into the Mickey Walker-Tommy Milligan championship fight at Olympia last night, boasting when he left New York that it would take a squad of police to keep him out, but upon after landing the British authorities took charge of him as a person likely to become a public charge.

Colonials Will Play at Stamford

On Thursday and Friday of Each Week for Remainder of Season—After Several Fast Players to Bolster Team.

Jack Robins received word from Stamford Wednesday evening that the proposed deal to have the Colonials represent Stamford as well as Kingston for the balance of the season had been effected. This proposition has been an uncertainty for several days pending the securing of the Stamford ball park for playing purposes. As this field has been secured the Colonials will start their twilight season on Wednesday, July 6, at the Fair Grounds and then play on Thursday and Friday, July 7 and 8, at Stamford. The Kingstonians will play Thursday and Friday of each week for the remainder of the season at Stamford.

After Several Stars.

"We want to make it the best team ever so we are after several players in New York in order to form the best combination we can," were the words of Jack Robins this morning. With the start of the twilight season the Colonial squad will be increased to fourteen or fifteen players. As the Kingstonians will be assuming a stiff weekly schedule, playing five games a week, Wednesday and Sunday at the Fair Grounds, Thursday and Friday at Stamford, and Saturday on the road, the managers have found need for an augmented force.

Seeking Dutch Woerner.

At present Dutch Woerner, Fordham star of 1925, is being sought by Managers Robins and Culloton. Woerner, who was conceded to be the fastest infielder in college circles in many a moon when he was at the peak of his career in 1925, is now playing semi-pro baseball in Long Island. He was also up with Cincinnati for a time. Robins realizes that Woerner would be a great asset to the team and is taking great strides to secure him. Three other baseball players with no mean reputation are also in the spotlight of the local managers. Howie Carter, former Fordham infielder, is another possibility for the Colonials. A man by the name of Crowley, who has made quite a name for himself on the mound and also a college star, is being sought along with Carroll, an infielder who is playing with a team in Westchester county.

Starting with Sunday or Monday most of the regular Colonials will be on hand for the summer campaign. Loeser, Allen, Kelly, Smith and McMara will be held for the holiday games as the Colonials meet the D. & H. Generals in one game Sunday and a double-header Monday morning and afternoon. But one game of the seven-game series with the upstate railroaders has been played as yet and there is great possibilities for three interesting matches over the holiday.

Central Hudson In First Place

Gasmen Beat Apollo Team, 8 to 5, Making It Four Straight—Whittaker's Pitching a Big Factor.

By taking advantage of the Apollo-Universals' wild throwing in the latter part of the game at the Athletic Field Thursday evening the Central Hudson Gas & Electric team won its fourth straight game by an 8-5 score and held first place by a bare margin of half a game. Knight was the leading batter, poling two doubles and a single.

Van Aken was on the mound for the Gasmen, but failed to last the full route, due to his generosity in presenting the Apollo team with walks. Whittaker took up the burden in the fourth inning and held the combination team hitless. Colvin was the pitcher for the Apollo. He went along fine until the fourth inning and then started to weaken.

The Apollo started to score early, getting two in the first inning. Jordan walked, but was thrown out on Merritt's bunt, Merritt reaching first. He stole second and third and scored with Glaser, who had been walked, on Colvin's double. In the fourth inning both teams scored, the Gasmen getting two and the Apollo one.

A double by Knight, a single by Sickler, and two putouts scored the Gasmen's runs. The Apollo scored on Colvin's single, Shultis's error and Hyatt's sacrifice fly. Both teams scored again in the fifth, the Gasmen three times and the Apollo twice.

Neither team could score in the sixth, but in the seventh the Gasmen sewed up the game. Hoffman hit a double to left field, Knight singled, and Hoffman scored on Jordan's bad throw home. Colvin erred on Disch's bunt and Knight scored. Colvin made a wild pitch and Disch reached third and scored on Hyatt's wild throw home. The Apollos were retired in regular order in their half of the last inning.

Getting Mother Told

Henry, age six, asked his mother why they had had a party the previous night, and his mother replied: "Aunt Rosa and Uncle Carl were married yesterday and we had a party last night on that account."

To this he replied: "Aunt Rosa is too good to get married."

"I don't understand what you mean by that," his mother said.

"Well, when people get married they have to get a divorce like you did, and I think Aunt Rosa and Uncle Carl are too good to have a divorce," he replied.

Herkimer -- Directing the Battle of Oriskany

"I WILL FACE THE ENEMY"

General Herkimer at the Battle of Oriskany (August 6, 1777). Frederick C. Yohn's great painting, which hangs in the Utica Public Library, one of the most dramatic events of the American Revolution, when General Nicholas Herkimer, shot through the leg at the first fire of Indians and Tories who had ambushed his relief column to Fort Stanwix in the Oriskany Ravine in August, 1777, was placed on his saddle at the foot of a great beech tree where he directed the battle. This is one of the most dramatic events of the three battles in the Burgoyne Campaign, on which the results of the American Revolution turned, and is to be memorialized by State and National action now in progress, which culminates in the Anniversary Pageant at Rome, August 6, 1927 of The Siege of Fort Stanwix and the Battle of Oriskany, written by Mrs. John L. Wickser of Buffalo.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

AS YOUNG AS SHE LOOKS

IN SPITE of all the problems that are bothering the world at present, this one, "Should women bob their hair?" continues to be discussed from New York to San Francisco and from Hudson bay to the Gulf of Mexico.

This question has now entered on a new phase. It has been made practical in all the great industrial centers of the country because many employers have taken sides.

Some say that they do not approve of bobbed hair in business.

Others say that they have no opinions on the subject, but may have later on.

Why, it may be asked, should there be such a fuss in a busy nation like America over a trivial matter like this—if anything feminine may be called trivial?

The fashion cannot be condemned as immodest. In fact, it is perfectly innocent and youthful.

That consideration gives a hint as to the true cause of the objection to bobbed hair in business.

For some mysterious reason women in general, for their age, tend to grow younger and still younger in appearance.

The woman of thirty is more youthful in looks than her grandmother was at nineteen or twenty.

She does not lose interest in her appearance as her ancestors used to do. She considers that her husband ought to find her as charming as a wife and mother as he did when he first met her, and didn't know whether she would accept him or not.

An American woman always dresses as well as she can afford to; always looks as well as she can and always, nowadays, wants to be as young as she looks.

She doesn't change her opinion, or her practice, on this subject when she goes into business.

There is nothing sentimental or foolish about the matter. It has nothing to do with making an impression or anything foolish like that. It is just a question of self-respect, of physical efficiency.

Men take a different view.

A great doctor said recently that every fresh gray hair in his head meant a new patient, and a successful lawyer said that his practice grew by leaps and bounds when he grew bald.

And so it goes. If women want to get along in the business world, they will have to make some concessions to masculine prejudices and not look as girlish as they can.

Do You Know ...??... That: ...??...

THE saying, "To bell the cat," comes from one of Aesop's fables. A colony of mice having suffered greatly from the sly tricks of a cat, met together to devise a remedy. A young mouse rose at the meeting and bravely proposed that a bell should be hung from the cat's neck and thus timely notice of her approach would always be given. This suggestion was greeted with great applause by the colony until a wise, old mouse put the pertinent question: "Who will bell the cat?"

Hence the expression, "To bell the cat," has come to mean to destroy or thwart a common enemy at a great personal risk."—Anna S. Turnquist.

Mother's Cook Book

At our house we laugh an' we sing and we shout,
And whirl all the chairs and the tables about:
An' rassel my pa, an' get him down too,
An' he's all out of breath when the fightin' is through:
An' ma says that our house is a sight,
But pa an' I say that our house is right.

THE MARSHMALLOW

THERE is nothing the children like better around the campfire than toasted marshmallows. In winter the grate is often the campfire and may be just as enjoyable. The marshmallow is a confection which lends itself to many culinary achievements.

An ordinary cream or lemon pie becomes especially stylish when decorated with a few quartered or whole marshmallows. They puff up, look so tempting and taste so good that it always pays to have a box of them for use in food. Cornstarch pudding, chocolate pudding, jello, salad dressings or fruit are all improved by the addition of a few marshmallows.

An apple or other fruit pie baked uncovered, and decorated with marshmallows is both attractive and digestible.

Hot chocolate or cocoa for the children is made most festive by a marshmallow swimming around on top.

Plain cookies, vanilla wafers, crackers or saltines are all the basis of most attractive little cakes when decorated with marshmallows, nuts and fruit preserved or dried. Place in hot oven to puff and brown.

Figs soaked overnight in grape juice, then drained and stuffed with nuts and marshmallows are delicious.

Pineapple marshmallows and whipped cream are delicious poured over slices of angel food for dessert.

Gingerbread and sponge cakes cut in two while hot and filled with marshmallows, put together and placed in a hot oven to melt, then served as a dessert are delightful. Be sure that the mallows are fresh or the melting takes too long.

Lindbergh Hops Off for Ottawa

St. Louis, July 1 (AP).— Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh hopped off today in his transatlantic monoplane "Spirit of St. Louis" on an unaccompanied flight to Ottawa, where he will participate tomorrow in the jubilee celebration of the confederation of Canada.

Prior to his departure, Colonel Lindbergh was undecided as to whether he would fly directly to Ottawa or stop enroute. He carried a 12-hour supply of gasoline.

Believe Byrd Broke Record

New York, July 1 (AP).—A new long distance record of 3,821 miles appeared to have been established today by Commander Richard E Byrd in his flight from New York to Ver-Sur-Mer, France.

The distance the America was estimated to have covered in its flight from Roosevelt Field to Paris was 3,637 miles and reports were that the plane reached Paris and then headed west landing in the sea off Ver-Sur-Mer, 175 miles away.

The previous long distance record was set by Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, who in their flight from New York to Klinge, Germany, covered approximately 3,790 miles.

SAUGERTIES MEN UNDER ARREST IN CHECK CASE.

William K. Leiber and George W Gardner, who conduct the Economy Market at Saugerties, were arrested there by the Saugerties police Thursday and turned over to Officer Soper, of the Kingston police force. They were brought here on a charge of petit larceny in giving Harry Isaacson of this city a check to cover the purchase of some goods. The check was for $13 75 and was drawn on the First National Bank of Saugerties It was later returned marked "No funds"

This morning in police court it was brought out that they had issued several other checks for various amounts which had also been returned for lack of funds. Attorney F C Merritt appeared for them and the case was held open by Judge Shufeldt to give them an opportunity to raise the money to make good the amount of the checks, including the amount of the protest fees.

Whitsuntide In Rothenburg

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D C.)

THE traveler in Germany who, at Whitsuntide, is within reach of Rothenburg ob-der-Tauber, should set aside all other plans and visit this perfect mediæval-walled town to witness a unique festival, so picturesque and so pleasantly diverting as to have no equal in continental Europe. On this occasion the city does honor to the man who took the biggest drink in all history, bar none! Thereby he saved the lives of Rothenburg's town council and obtained mercy for his fellow citizens.

This is the story:

During the Thirty Years' war Rothenburg felt secure behind her great wall, with her towers well placed for defense; with her wide, and at that time very wet, moat; with her citizenry trained to arms and loving nothing better than a good fight, and with a garrison of professional soldiers, a Swedish force sent to help the Rothenburgers against the enemy. But the city was besieged by no less a general than Tilly himself, who brought up his whole army of 40,000 and swore to capture the town and deal with it as he had already dealt with hapless Magdeburg.

Tilly's cannon battered at the walls, and the light artillery of the city's towers was powerless to silence the heavier guns of the besiegers; but whenever a breach was made and Tilly's soldiers attacked, in hand-to-hand fighting, they were beaten off by the intrepid townsmen.

Tilly warned the city that capture was inevitable, and that the only salvation of the citizens lay in surrender, but they would none of it. At last one of the assailants' cannon, by a lucky shot, exploded the Rothenburg powder magazine. Even then the doughty burghers refused to surrender, but with dauntless courage continued the hand-to-hand fighting. It was left to the garrison of mercenaries to hang out the white flag.

Saved by a Huge Drink.

Tilly was so enraged at the prolonged resistance of the town that, after he had taken possession of it and allowed the surrendering Swedes to march out in safety, he summoned the members of the town council and informed them that they were all to be hanged. But, moved by the pleas of their wives and daughters, the conqueror at length mitigated this sentence and announced that he would hang only four He gave the council permission to cast lots to see who of their number should die.

Whereupon the undismayed council stood up and refused the marshal's "mercy," saying they would all live or they would all die, but there would be no lot-casting among them at Tilly's bidding

At this point in the proceedings, a diversion was created by the appearance of the town Pokal, the state beaker, a huge three-quart glass, filled with the town's best wine. Tilly and his seven aides drank and drank again. The Pokal went around twice and still it was not empty.

Perhaps the wine softened Tilly's heart! At all events, he cast a grimly humorous eye over the council and swore that if there were any man among them who could empty the famous Pokal at one draft the council would be spared and mercy would be shown to the citizenry.

The proposal did not seem to offer much of a chance to the staunch patriots, even though the Rothenburgers were supposed to be as good drinkers as fighters: but at last one brave soul, ex-Burgomaster George Nusch, said he would make a try, and intimated that if he failed he'd just as soon be hanged drunk as sober.

The keeper of the town cellar refilled the beaker, and George Nusch lifted it—and drank—and drank—and drank—and drank. One quart, two quarts and a half, three quarts—down it went to the very last drop! And with the last drop Nusch fell senseless at the feet of the conquering general, while a cheer went up from those he had saved from the hangman's noose.

It is gratifying to relate that Nusch came to presently and suffered no ill effects from his draft.

Tilly was as good as his word—nearly. He spared the Rothenburgers' lives, but he made them pay him heavily in cash for his leniency, and he turned the town over to his soldiers for a week of looting and pillage. But George Nusch had won a place in history and in the hearts of his countrymen that well deserves the annual Whitsuntide party the city stages for him.

Re-enacted in the Pageant.

This is the pageant of Whitsuntide which the tourist must not miss. Each year some thousand or more of the town's inhabitants don the costumes of 1631 and re-enact the whole drama of the siege, the capture, and the emptying of the Pokal—with the exception that the George Nusch of today doesn't have to drink the whole three quarts. It is all done with superb pageantry of detail, with spirit, gusto and rare histrionic power.

It would not be possible, of course, to give this drama as it is given, were not Rothenburg itself still very much as it was in medieval times. To be sure, the moat has been drained, save for a pond or two, and peaceful gardens and orchards grow where once its turbid waters flowed. But the wall is still there, repaired and complete, and the very towers where once the arquebuses fired futilely at Tilly's men at arms.

Moreover, the townsmen of Rothenburg, with splendid appreciation of their native place, have refused to let any modern innovations creep into the architecture or the city's streets. When a house or a highway within the walls needs repair, it is done in a way to preserve its ancient appearance. Rothenburg today looks as it must have looked long before Columbus discovered America. Indeed, parts of the city date from two centuries before that time.

This fascinating town is the sort of place to drive an artist mad, since every corner, every shop, every tiny red tiled house, is a picture. As for the Rathaus, with its beautiful Renaissance doorway in the inner court, the Jakobskirche, the Franciscan church, the Burgturm, the romantic Topplerschlosschen, and the small Gothic Kobolzeller church, built in 1472, with its amusing double spiral staircase, which two persons can ascend at once without seeing each other—all of these can be, have been, and will be painted again and again, for the delight of all those who find pleasure in medieval beauty.

Ancient Torture Chambers.

Below the Rathaus are torture chambers and dungeons, without which no medieval town hall would be complete. The Rothenburgers did nothing by halves; so their dungeons and torture chambers are the last word in horror even now, though the rack and the Iron Maiden have been removed Criminals were executed here by the sword as recently as 1804, in which year Bavaria stepped in and revoked the city's rights to deal out such bloody punishments.

The civic pride of the old-time Rothenburgers was a splendid thing They dug down into their pockets and built the Rathaus just after a war tax of 80,000 guldens had been levied on the town. They built the Jakobskirche, a high and handsome basilica. In one of the chapels inside this church is the tomb of Heinrich Toppler, an even greater hero in Rothenburg than Nusch. He was a burgomaster of the earlier days, for he died in 1408, and to him the town owed much of its prosperity and many of its fine buildings. There are two dice carved on Toppler's tomb, because he cast dice for the city with the Burgrave of Nuremburg and won!

When the traveler is weary of churches he will do well to go out into the park and enjoy the views of the town's steep red gables, while below in the valley may be seen Toppler's own castle, where he used often to entertain his friend, the Emperor Wenzel.

After a visit to the park, a walk around the city on top of the old wall is in order. This may be reached by staircases at the city's gates. The wall has a roofed pathway some 4 feet wide, open on the town side only. The Spitalbastei, the great bastion at the extreme end of the town, is an epitome of medieval defense, with its 5-foot walls, wide ramparts, and frowning old guns.

As a last and pleasing touch, one should read the old Latin motto on the near-by Kobolzellertor, the most picturesque of all the city's gates:

"PAX INTRANTIBUS

which may be translated as "Peace to those who enter; safety to those who depart."

Rotarians Enjoy Varied Program

Entertainment at the Rotary luncheon this week was the most elaborate and varied in a long time, the occasion marking the finish by Merton Goldrick of a month of service to the club in providing the program for the meetings. It lacked only having Mr. Goldrick open the program with "Hello everybody" and close it with "Goodbye; God bless you" to make it a complete replica of a Roxy entertainment.

There was music by Maisenhelder's Orchestra, the selections ranging all the way from jazz to grand opera, singing and dancing by Marie and Jeanne Ward, two children so small that they had to stand on a table to be seen, solos by Leon Carey of Woodstock, a very brief address by Jansen Fowler, winner of the Rotary prize for high school boys, and an address by Kingston's most recently crowned boy orator, Leo Doheney, who won one of the Times prizes and also the K H. S prize for oratory.

Mr. Doheney deserves all he has won, if his speech to the Rotarians is a fair sample of his work, as he manifested in it the too unusual combination of oratory and common sense that enabled him to combine real ideas with the words, gestures and the other usual manifestations of oratory. His address was a review of the struggles for freedom, an appreciation of the U S Constitution and a plea for better citizenship and a greater sense of responsibility on the part of the citizen, without which any government under any constitution will be a failure.

Coolidge Praises Byrd by Cable

Washington, July 1 (AP).—The congratulations of President Coolidge were cabled to Commander Byrd today by the state department

"I send you my sincere congratulations on your successful flight across the Atlantic," the message said "I have followed your distinguished courageous career in aerial navigation with interest and admiration Your flight to the North Pole proved the effectiveness of the aeroplane in adding to the scientific knowledge of the unexplored surface of the world and I am sure that your present flight will notably advance our knowledge of conditions which must be met and conquered to make transatlantic aerial navigation commercially practicable and safe."

Told Them Something About Fence Building

Quite a crowd was gathered round the store in the grocery. As Bill Tompkins concluded his tale of his wonderful achievements in fence building, there came a lull in the conversation. It was very evident that all were deeply impressed by Bill's recital, for silence is to the soap box orator what applause is to the politician.

Finally the silence was broken by an old character known as "Wrinkles."

"Wall," said he, "that thar was some fencin'—leastwise for these days. But let me tell you that if you want to know anything about fence making, you want to ask some of us old fellows. Why, back in '68, when me and Dick Potter was working for the rail road, the boss sent us out one morning to build a four-board fence along both sides of the right-of-way, and sir, by quitting time that night we had made so much fence that it took us three whole days to walk back to where we started from."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Shake Hands With Self

When you meet a friend, why not shake hands with yourself instead of clasping the other's hand? The Ohio Health News makes the suggestion, urging adoption of the Chinese method of handshaking as a hygienic measure Many infections are transmitted through the medium of hand shaking by the American method while the Chinese custom obviates this danger.

And now the glorious "Fourth is here There's no doubt but what you intend going out over the week end Probably you'll need some Outdoor Clothes

Well, we have Knickers and Golf Hose,—and sport shoes,—and Sweaters,—and Camp Cots,—and Camp Equipment,— and Camp Cooking Utensils — and ever so many things Now listen folks, come up and get prepared for the Outdoors The woods and streams are calling and if they could speak, what a wonderful recommendation they could give us.

* * * * *

And now in this paragraph we'll talk about our Bathing Suits and Sporting goods Now it stands to reason that you've heard of loads of Bathing Suits we sell—well, this year we're selling more and more and more. We carry the Jantzen and D Kantrowitz brands and the prices run from one ninety-eight up to nine dollars. Our biggest selling price is from four dollars to five eighty-nine. We also have Beach Balls, Swimming Tubes, Swimming Wings, Bathing Hats, Bathing Slippers and everything for the beach,

This is now the time for Sporting Goods. And you—Mr. Father—get a baseball in your hand and let the son knock out some "flies" to you. If the girls play tennis, we also have the rackets and balls for them. Visit our Sporting Goods Department and buy some of our Life-Renewing Playthings.

* * * * *

Shoes, Shoes, Shoes—Say, every place I walk, I'm always stepping on them, even if I do look where I walk. And Men, if you want to pay six dollars for a shoe or oxford, try our Kantrowitz's Osteopathic numbers. There's a style for every age,—a shape for every foot,—100% sewed and welted—only seven nails in the making,—guaranteed in every way,—will not lose their shape,—and by rights we should add steam heat, hot and cold water, etc., etc., just like a real estate ad. But all joking aside, men, this is some shoe and you ought to try a pair.

And tell the Women that our Kantrowitz Arch Support Stylish Pump and Oxfords are going big They sell at five fifty, and ah! What a bargain. It will pay you to pay a bit more and get a guaranteed shoe with no endangering your health by bad fitting shoes for our shoe manager has established quite a little reputation for "fitting shoes properly."

Our Kiddies' shoes run from one thirty-five and up with a special Kantrowitz Super Line of Kiddies' Footwear at two twenty-five up to three seventy-five.

* * * * *

Men'—Do we have to tell you about our Suits? You bet we don't. You all know how many we sell, and how reasonably they're priced. It's always a good idea to step up and see us. Give us a look anyway. Will it pay you? Say, don't make us laugh. Are they good wearing suits? Well, if you ever have a complaint against one of our suits just bring it back and get a new one in place of it. It's the satisfied customers that continually boost our business month after month and year after year

Well, so long, until later.

Another Broadway Improvement

D Miller, owner of the property at 652 Broadway, has had its front reconstructed and modern plate glass show windows installed and other improvements made. He will move his pharmacy to the building from its present location, 672 Broadway.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 1 (AP).—Rising prices ushered in the new month in the stock market. Despite the collapse of half a dozen issues to new low levels for the year, operators for the rise bid aggressively for stocks, sending more than a dozen issues to new peak prices as shorts scrambled to cover. The rise was accelerated by the lowering of the call money rate from 5 to 4½ per cent which took place in the face of the calling of about $30,000,000 in loans.

Business news, which has had an unfavorable tinge of late, apparently was disregarded for the time being. With the exception of Baldwin and a few other specialties, which were run up at the expense of an overcrowded short interest, speculators for the advance centered their attention on issues of companies reporting large current earnings, or showing prospects of materially increased profits this fall, on the theory that these securities would attract part of the enormous volume of funds now being distributed in the form of dividend and interest payments.

While all sorts of merger rumors were circulated regarding the low priced rails, buying also was associated with reports that efforts would be made to obtain a reduction in the 5¾ per cent return on property investment now allowed class 1 carriers, part of the surplus over which is supposed to be used for the benefit of the weaker lines.

Baldwin, in which the short interest recently increased on the announcement of a reduction in operations to ten per cent of capacity, soared 13 points to a new record top at 232½. New peak prices also were attained by Southern Pacific, Adams Express, Collins and Aikman, Rossia Insurance, Reid Ice Cream, Mullins Body, Manhattan Electrical Supply and American Chicle.

On the other hand, the Pan American issues, American Car and Foundry, Jordan and Cuba Company, sank to new 1927 lows.

POULTRY

KEEPING TURKEYS IN PROPER HEALTH

Turkeys are heir to all the poultry ailments, and treatment is about the same. But while the young are tender, the adults are able to withstand considerable hardship.

When allowed to range over fields, woods and highways they keep in the best of condition and pick up a very large portion of their food, writes Michael K. Boyer in the Farm and Ranch. As the nature of the turkey is to roam, it does not thrive in confinement.

Inbreeding is one of the worst errors and the cause of much degeneracy among stock. Indigestion is the chief turkey trouble, and this is usually brought on by improper feeding.

Looseness of the bowels may come from bad feeding, dampness, filth, and infestation with lice.

Young poults are sometimes lost through rheumatism, caused by exposure, damp roosting places, too little green food, or poorly-constructed houses.

There is a difference between ordinary leg weakness and rheumatism. In the later the shanks remain contracted and stiff, while in leg weakness they are soft. Leg weakness is brought on by a lack of muscle and bone-forming material. In rheumatism the trouble is aggravated by the ment food, which in leg weakness is needed.

Young turkeys must not be allowed to become wet. The slightest dampness is apt to be fatal. Filth will soon make short work of the youngsters.

The delicacy of young turkeys is largely due to the rapid growth of feathers. Unlike the chick, the young turkey at once starts to put out large feathers on its wings and tail, and this heavy growth has a tendency to sap the vitality from the body, leaving it an easy prey to weakness and disease. A damp soil, such as heavy clay land, is very unsuitable for rearing the young. A very cold, exposed situation is likewise unfit.

Market Broilers Need Two Weeks Fattening

It is a good plan to give the broilers that are to be marketed about two weeks of fattening before they are sold. This is especially advisable if something has happened during the brooding period to check the growth of these young birds. One way to fatten them is to confine a group of them in a small house—about 100 in a 10 by 12 house—for a period of two weeks just before selling them. Darken the house as much as possible, making sure there is plenty of ventilation. Remove any roosts or dropping boards that may be in the house and have plenty of clean litter on the floor to start with.

Feed them a wet mash of the consistency of pancake batter, composed of any of the good commercial fatteners moistened with milk. Fine cracked yellow corn or yellow corn meal and milk are great fatteners for poultry. Feed the birds three times a day in troughs, what they will clean up at each feeding. Keep water away from them so they will eat lots of mash. Watch sanitary conditions carefully, to prevent any spoiling of feed and possible disease infection. Keep everything clean.

Free Range With Grass and Shade Is Favored

As soon as the chicks are old enough to leave the brooder—from six to eight weeks—they should be placed on free range with grass and shade if possible. If white diarrhea, gape worms or the little roundworms affected the chicks last year, place the coops on new range if possible, for these diseases are not easily gotten rid of and will remain on the ground from one season to another. This is especially true of the worms. If there is tuberculosis in the old flock keep the young chicks from going over the same ground for they contract the disease easily.

Grass will furnish all of the green feed necessary during the summer if chicks are on free range.

Examine the Hens

Handle the flock. There is dependability about touch which does not belong to sight. Feeling the breast bone of a fowl is an index to her condition. Looking at her tells little of her body. A hen that is out of condition may fluff her feathers like a broody hen. Wasting is common after a hard winter. Of the wasting diseases, tuberculosis comes first. Worms, lice and mites follow. The normal fowl in good health is in good flesh.

Good Chick Waterer

A good waterer for chicks can be made with a tomato can and saucer or a syrup pail and pie tin. Punch holes about one inch from the upper edge of the can or pail—from six to eight holes are plenty. When ready to use fill can or pail with water, turn the saucer or pie tin over the top, hold tightly in place and invert. The water will come through the holes till the saucer or pan is full and as the chicks drink the dish will automatically be refilled.

Byrd Tells of All-Night Battle

After Fighting Through Blanket of Mist Decides to Come Down and Trust to Luck—Had Cold Sea Bath.

London, July 1 (AP).—Commander Richard E. Byrd was lost in continuous dense rain clouds from the moment he left the French coast at Brest last night in his effort to find Paris, says a vivid story, quoting the American aviator directly, cabled to the Evening News by its Cherbourg correspondent.

Telling of the all-night battle of the American in a rainstorm which ended with a cold plunge at 5 o'clock this morning in the sea at Ver-Sur-Mer, a tiny French bathing resort, Commander Byrd was quoted as saying:

"I hoped to be able to find my way to Le Bourget by wireless and at one time, about 2:30 a. m., I must have passed very near Paris. All the way we were fighting our way through a blanket of mist and rain and couldn't see fifty feet ahead.

"We must have flown in circles, for the next wireless call of which I picked up a fragment showed that we were somewhere near Havre.

"We went on, hoping for a rift in the clouds through which we might see land when day came. But we were running terribly short of gasoline. At 5 o'clock this morning there was nothing left but to come down and trust to luck. We did so and had a cold sea bath."

Commander Byrd also was quoted as saying that his wireless apparatus failed to pick up land signals and that his compass was out of order.

Murphy-Dempsey.

A very pretty June wedding took place Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock when Miss Frances Dempsey, daughter of William Dempsey of Newport News, Va., became the bride of Peter Murphy of Port Ewen. The ceremony was performed at St. Peter's Church by the Rev. J. P. Neumann, pastor of the church. The altar was beautifully decorated with flowers and candles. The wedding march was played by the organist of the church. A beautiful peach georgette gown with rhinestone trimmings was worn by the bride with a picture hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and sweet peas. The bridesmaid, Miss Edith McAndrew, a friend of the bride, wore a gown of orchid georgette with a picture hat to match. She carried pink rose buds. The best man was Joseph Dempsey, a brother of the bride. After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home. The happy couple left amid a shower of rice and confetti for a short honeymoon trip. They have the wishes of a host of friends who wish them a prosperous and happy married life. On their return they will reside at 17 Hone street.

Celebrates 78th Birthday.

On Saturday, June 25, John Cullum of No. 4 Cottage Row, celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday. Of Mr. Cullum's seventeen children, the five who are living, together with a number of grandchildren and two great grand-children, attended a party in honor of the occasion. The dining room was artistically decorated with roses and other June flowers, and a large birthday cake, with 78 lighted candles, formed the centerpiece of the prettily decorated and well-laden table. Mr. Cullum, who is enjoying excellent health and is able to attend to business every day, was presented with 78 roses by his youngest grandchild, baby Kathryn Polysack. Mr. Cullum has the distinction of having been an officer's boy in the Civil War, during which time he was patted on the head by Abraham Lincoln. The out-of-town guests attending the celebration were Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Leonard and family, Mr. and Mrs. James Leonard of Bridgeport, Conn., Mr. and Mrs. John Leonard of New Brunswick, N. CANNING DEMONSTRATION AT KERHONKSON TUESDAY

On Tuesday, July 5, at 2 in the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation office at Kerhonkson, Miss Nellie Davenport will give a demonstration on canning, and the making of jelly and jam. A very convenient and successful method of "Canning all you can while you can" will be covered in the discussion on oven-canning. The most healthful source in solving the family's desire for sweets is the use of jellies and jams. Time and flavor saving methods will be brought out in the demonstration of the making of these sweets. There need be no doubt of the success of jelly making and canned and dried fruits, bottled fruit juices and fruit syrups, also fruits that are really ripe may be used as successfully as those ordinarily thought of as "fit for jelly making" with the old-time methods.

New York Apples Need More Care

The State Grows the Best Fruit but Spoils Its Reputation by Mishandling Between the Tree and the Trade.

Ithaca, N. Y., July 1.—"If New York State is to hold its place as a leader in apple production, the New York apple must improve its reputation," according to G. W. Peck, one of the fruit men at the New York State College of Agriculture.

He says that as New York apples hang on the tree at harvest time they are as fine in quality as money can buy, but that they are so likely to be mishandled from the time they leave the tree to the time they reach the consumer that they are in danger of losing the public confidence.

Some dealers have established a brand, a pack, and a reputation which demand a premium with the apple trade. However, it takes time to establish a reputation and there are still too many fruit growers, according to Professor Peck, who neglects to win this confidence.

Carelessness Hurts.

The dropping of one apple upon another into the picking bag, the careless emptying of the bag into the barrel or crate, allowing the fruit to drop a foot or more, carelessness in sorting the apples, and carelessness in bruising the fruit as the head is forced into the barrel, is little short of criminal. The net results are discoloration, bruised spots, stem punctures, uninviting appearance, slow sale, discouraging returns, unsatisfied trade, and a poor reputation for New York apples.

All of this can be prevented according to Professor Peck by carefulness and a pride in marketing as well as growing a high standard product.

Then the Fun Began

A young university undergraduate had to present himself for an examination in which he was expected to read a short thesis on Greek tragedy. Knowing nothing of the subject, he asked the help of a friend, who was an expert. This gentleman wrote and gave him a masterly little treatise, of which the only fault lay in the penmanship.

At the examination all went well until the young man startled his audience with the sentence, "We now come to the tragedies of Bophocles."

"The tragedies of whom?" gasped one of the examiners.

"You mean Sophocles!" exclaimed another.

For some moments the young man gazed earnestly at the manuscript. Then he looked up with a reassured smile, and said, "No, it is distinctly Bophocles here."

Tips to Bosses

Don't hire a man with light hair and blue eyes for an office job unless you're going to give him a great deal to do and a heap of credit for doing it.

Men work harder if they think they are appreciated. Half an executive's job is to learn when and how to praise men under him.

Most of our great students, philosophers and scientists have rather dark complexions. Most of our leaders, pioneers and executives have had a leaning toward light hair, eyes and skin.

To reach people you have to approach them as friends, not as policemen or teachers.

Start Discussion Of the Submarine

Technical Committee of the Naval Conference Settle Down to Discussion of the Submarine Problem—Agree on Size of Destroyers.

Geneva, July 1 (AP).—After a night of conjecture over Commander Byrd and his transatlantic flight companions, the technical committee of the tri-partite naval conference settled down today to a discussion of the submarine problem.

The status of such auxiliary craft as Chinese river gunboats and minesweepers have been virtually agreed upon, promising progress was made yesterday on the destroyer question, and the task of reaching an agreement on the regulation of undersea craft appeared fairly facile compared with that of deciding on the status of cruisers, which the technicians have already tackled and are still working on.

Moreover the delegates began the day under a good omen. The declaration of W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the British Admiralty, in an exclusive statement to The Associated Press, that Great Britain was not seeking supremacy over America and accepted parity wholeheartedly, is generally interpreted as calculated to speed the conference's work.

Yesterday, due without doubt to Mr. Bridgeman's words, the experts came to an agreement that the maximum size of all destroyers in future should be 1,000 tons. It was agreed also that the maximum size of flotilla leaders should be 1,850 tons and that the name cruisers should be applied to all warships above 1,850 tons in the class of auxiliary surface craft.

Paints Lasting Colors in Flowers With Brush

San Francisco.—Alois Frey uses a tiny camel's hair brush, intended for water color artists, to paint new, permanent, and hereditary colors into flowers.

Frey is a plant lover and hybridizer. His 25-acre bed of freesias here is one of the finest in the world. For 20 years he has been patiently transferring infinitesimal grains of fertilizing pollen from one flower to another with his little brush.

The years of labor by this "floral" artist have produced a score of distinct hues of the flowers which were obtained in only one or two colors when introduced from South Africa many years ago. Besides the twenty-odd distinct shades he now has hundreds of mixed colors. He has classified 1,200 separate creations.

Formerly superintendent of greenhouses at Lincoln park, Chicago, Frey began his freesia development at Crown Point, Ind., and when he came to California, eight years ago, brought more than 100,000 bulbs he had grown under glass in Indiana.

Can Do All but Act, So She Runs Shows

Hartford, Conn.—Miss Marian Fuller, one of the few American women who are professional stage managers, has a record many young women would envy.

She was on her way to success as an artist, but her desire to act interfered with her studies, so she turned to the stage. Then the war came and she became a Red Cross worker, in which capacity she won the Croix de Guerre and other decorations. After her war experience she says:

"Acting was the one thing I just couldn't do, so I turned to stage managing."
